CHILDHOOD.

Our infant days, our infant joys to greet ;
To roam in fancy in each cherished scene,
The village churchyard, and the village green.
The woodland walk remote, the greenwood glade,
The mossy seat beneath the hawthorn's shade,
The whitewashed cottage, where the woodbine grew,
And all the favorite haunts our childhood knew !
How sweet, while all the evil shuns the gaze,
To view the unclouded skies of former days.

Beloved age of innocence and smiles,
When each wing'd hour some new delight beguiles,
When the gay heart, to life's sweet day-spring true,
Still finds some insect pleasure to pursue.
Blest Childhood, hail!—Thee simply will I sing,
And from myself the artless picture bring ;
These long-lost scenes to me the past restore,
Each humble friend, each pleasure, now no more.
And ev'ry stump familiar to my sight
Recalls some fond idea of delight.

And oh! thou Power whose myriad trains resort
To distant scenes, and pictures them to thought,
Whose mirror, held unto the mourner's eye,
Flings to his soul a borrow'd gleam of joy;
Blest Memory, guide, with finger nicely true,
Back to my soul my retrospective view;
Recall with faithful vigor to my mind
Each face familiar, each relation kind;
And all the finer traits of them afford
Whose general outline in my heart is stored.

PREFATORY NOTES.

IN the autumn of the year 1888, during a visit at the home of my grandfather, the late Samuel W. McGinness, of Allegheny, Pa., I was called upon by him to assist in compiling genealogical notes of his family, both on the paternal and maternal side. As he was then the oldest living member of both families—gifted with a remarkable memory, and having a personal knowledge of many persons and places herein mentioned—he was urged by many friends to produce a brief history of the McGinness and Scott families, for the benefit of those now living, and for future generations. Impelled by these considerations, and having leisure time, as he had then retired from active business, he decided to attempt the work, providing I would assist him with the writing.

We at once embarked in the undertaking, and began collecting material and records necessary for the work, engaging in it at such times as Grandpa's health permitted. As the work progressed, it became evident that the family connection was more extensive than we had at first anticipated, which, had we known in the beginning, would have made us hesitate to undertake so great a task, as it has involved an extensive correspondence, necessarily consuming much time and labor.

In the midst of our work we were compelled to lay it aside, owing to Grandpa's sickness, which, after months of enfeebled health, finally terminated his life.

“ Friend after friend departs.
Who has not lost a friend ? ”

As Grandpa requested me to finish the work in which he had taken such great interest, and realizing the importance of preserving the records of our ancestors—the place of their birth and the home of their childhood—and of placing our family records in a permanent form, in order that they may be preserved for future generations, I resumed the task some months after his death. Being deprived of his valuable knowledge, and laboring under discouragements in seeking trace of many families whose records had not yet been obtained, I have found it somewhat difficult to complete the work. The materials accumulated on my hands, and the consequence is, the record has expanded as the work advanced, until it has reached a size far beyond what was anticipated. In order to keep the volume within the limits desired, it has been necessary to omit many details that might be interesting.

In compiling these notes, no attempt has been made to eulogize, or give descriptions of the general appearance, or to delineate the character of the persons under consideration, except in a few cases where notes from the pen of others were inserted. “Personal knowledge,” says Southey, in his Life of Cowper, “is indeed the greatest of all advantages for such an undertaking, notwithstanding the degree of restraint, which must generally be regarded as one of its conditions.” Not having this “personal knowledge” of the persons herein mentioned, except in comparatively few cases, and realizing the difficulties which would arise in seeking to obtain reliable materials from which to compile such sketches, I have abstained from essaying a task so great. I am conscious of the fact that, by omitting this department of biographical work and presenting only unvarnished statements of the facts, and dates, the record is less interesting than it otherwise might have been; but, in order to avoid undue partiality, or of hurting the feelings of any, it is best, perhaps, that nothing further has been attempted, for in so tracing the lives of persons, we are obliged to tread, occasionally, over very delicate and debatable ground.

It is pleasing to review the lives and actions of those from whom we derive our immediate descent, and who have done honor to their family name by their talents and their virtues. It has been truly said, "The study of family history elevates and ennobles the nature of man, and lifts it up to a truer and nobler type. To know nothing of our ancestry, or from whence we came ; to have no reverence for the precious memories of the past, or an interest in those who are to succeed us in the battle of life, is to ignore the elements and influences that have made us what we are, to repudiate the natural instincts and affections of the human heart, and to suppress the aspirations and hopes of a soul that is to course on through endless cycles of eternity."

A study of the pioneer life of our forefathers could not fail to be both interesting and instructive to us, who have, as it were, placed ourselves out of sight of the immediate past, and merged ourselves so deeply in the concerns of the present, as to regard the scenes through which our ancestors passed as almost a myth.

Let us, however, try to forget the present for a brief period, and transport ourselves in imagination to the rude log cabin of our grandfathers. How interesting those early scenes upon which we look ! Let us pause in the "hurly burly" of busy life and contemplate them, if not for the instruction they afford, at least for the diversion they would give. Our pioneer forefathers had to suffer many privations, which extended not only to the luxuries of life, but to its very necessities. The most rigid simplicity was observed in furniture, food and dress. Truly, those were times of stern necessity. Then, too, their travel from place to place was beset with many trials and dangers, for, in those early days of settlement, wagon roads where unknown in the "western wilds," much less the better facilities for travel, with which we are so familiar.

It is greatly to be regretted that incidents and experiences of the pioneer life of our immediate ancestors have not been preserved, as it would certainly not only be interesting, but profitable to us all, as descendants of the pioneer forefathers herein mentioned, to be acquainted with the particulars of their lives; but when we contemplate the trials and dangers through which they passed in their struggles for existence in a new country, and of the difficulties which met them on every hand, we need not wonder that so little time was devoted to writing, and so little attention paid to the preservation of family records.

Let us, and the future generations, profit by this neglect of those who have long since passed away, and give special attention to the preservation of important events, facts and records so that some one, in the future, may be enabled to "take up the thread, and weave a larger fabric of more varied colors." When notes and letters from the pen of those under consideration are accessible, it is a comparatively easy matter to produce satisfactory biographical sketches; whereas, in retrospect, much must, of necessity, be overlooked and much be lost.

Had the work of compiling this family record been attended to years ago, when the older members of the family were still living, much valuable and interesting information, relating to our ancestors, could have been obtained which is now lost; but such as has been written is herewith presented, with the hope that, while it may be a disappointment to expectations, yet it may serve the purpose intended and be appreciated by all herein considered, and also by future generations of the McGinness and Scott families.

To those who have roamed the same hills and traversed the same valleys in childhood, it will certainly be a pleasant pastime to review the lives of their former associates, and thus recall, with fond delight, the long-lost scenes of the past, and the old homestead, around which cluster many pleasant memories.

“As figures in our dreams, how often pass
The scenes of childhood through the busy brain,
Flitting like shadows, o’er the waving grass,
Each but a moment seen retreats again.”

The work, although tedious and somewhat arduous, has been in many respects pleasant and instructive, and I trust the readers may be both interested and profited by a perusal of its pages. I ask that it may be viewed, not with a critic’s eye, but with indulgence.

The compilation of the work necessarily involved the transcribing and arranging of a multiplicity of dates and names, together with notes from the numerous letters sent me, and, notwithstanding the fact that I have endeavored to be accurate, undoubtedly some errors will be detected by interested persons. Should any errors be discovered, they should be corrected at once, and all omissions supplied.

It will be observed that the one form of writing the name “McGinness” has been adhered to throughout this work, as it was claimed by my grandfather to be the one adopted by this branch of the family, generally; however, some of the families herein considered write the name McGinnis, and others Maginess. The different ways of spelling it were brought about largely by the fancy of members of different branches of the original family. The proper spelling of the name, according to eminent Irish historians, is Magennis, which is explained in the pages following.

I feel that I owe some apology to those interested for the delay in presenting this work to them. Various duties, from which I could not well escape, have occupied or broken in upon my time to such a degree that I have been enabled to devote only a portion of it to the task, which partly accounts for the regretted delay in completing it. The families herein considered are greatly scattered, many in the far West, and much time was necessarily consumed in tracing some of them and in obtaining desired information. With but few exceptions, those to whom I have written soliciting information have gladly responded, though in some cases the answers were so long delayed as to greatly retard the work of compilation. In some instances no answers were received, which will account for the broken links in the genealogical chain, and the blanks in some family records.

Some of the members of the families considered have rendered valuable assistance by furnishing information of others, which, perhaps, could not otherwise have been obtained, and I take the present opportunity to thank all who have in any manner assisted in the work.

I desire especially to acknowledge indebtedness to John F. Meginness, Esq., of Williamsport, Pa.,—author of "Biography of Frances Slocum," "Origin and History of the Magennis Family," etc.—for very valuable assistance. The notes on the early history of the Magennis family and origin of the name, as found in the following pages, were furnished by him, he having gathered the same for insertion in his recent publication, "History of the Magennis Family," and kindly permitted me to reproduce them herè. His work is an exceedingly interesting and valuable compilation of genealogical notes of his branch of the family and of others of the name, and is not only interesting to every one bearing the name, but to the general reader, as it contains many historical facts of a most interesting nature.

In the preface of his valuable book, Mr. Meginness says: "The date of the origin of the clan of Magennis runs so far back that it has almost become obscured by the haze of antiquity. Long before the Christian era, eight sons of King Milesius, of Spain, raised a fleet and sailed for Ireland for the purpose of conquest. When about to land a storm arose and dispersed the fleet. Five of the eight brothers were drowned. The saved—Heber, Heremon, Amergin and Heber Don, son of Ir, (one of the brothers lost,) effected a landing, met the natives in battle, routed them, seized the country and founded a colony. Heber and Heremon divided the territory between them. The third brother became their arch priest. In the course of time quarrels arose between them and Heber was slain. Amergin then claimed a share in the conquest, when more trouble arose and he was killed in battle. Thus Heremon became sole monarch. He then made another division of the land amongst his friends. The northern part of Ireland, now Ulster, he gave to his nephew, Heber Don, Ir's only son. From Ir, therefore, all the provincial kings of Ulster, and all the ancient nobility derive their pedigrees. The Magennis family had its origin in the Irian line, but it was not until the eleventh century that surnames were adopted and the name began to undergo changes in spelling. All, therefore, bearing the name, no matter how it is spelled, descended from the same stock and are of Milesian origin.

"The clan, while in its original condition, was fierce and warlike, and engaged in many bloody conflicts. The meaning of the name in its original orthography, "great strength," indicates that the members of the family were physically strong and powerful.

"An examination of the early Irish annals, as found recorded in that great work entitled, The Four Masters, which brings the history down to 1616, shows that the original seat of the family was in what is now known as County Down. There they lived, multiplied and flourished for hundreds of years; there they often engaged in bloody conflicts with the clan O'Neill; there the Lords of Iveah came into existence and held sway until the rapacious English invaded Ireland, upturned society, confiscated estates, devastated the land by fire and sword, crushed the hearts of the people and caused their sons and daughters to seek homes in foreign lands.

“All the professions, with but few exceptions, are represented by those bearing the name, conspicuous among them being law, medicine, theology, education, journalism, history and literature. Many have attained to high distinction in civil and military pursuits, and reflected credit and honor upon their names. The record is a proud one, and no descendant in the Irian line need be ashamed of his ancestry.”

Not having succeeded in gaining access to books bearing on the early history of the family, Mr. Meginness' timely assistance saved me much research, and rendered the work better deserving of favor than it otherwise might have been. Trusting that it may prove satisfactory to all concerned, it is submitted to their considerate judgment.

THE FAMILY OF MAGENNIS.

ITS ORIGIN AND HISTORY.

THE following extracts were taken from the recent publication of John F. Meginness, as mentioned in the preface of this work.

“The family of Magennis is one of the oldest in Ireland, yet comparatively little of its history is known in America. There is a full record of the family in Ireland down to the time of the English invasion in 1600. After that time, on account of the destruction of records, there is a break which can only be supplied by tradition for nearly a hundred years.

“Those bearing the name in its various forms of spelling—although they have all descended from the same parent stem—are very numerous in the United States today, the greatest number, perhaps, being found in Pennsylvania. Philadelphia, it seems, was the point to which the early immigrants directed their steps, and from there they gradually spread to the interior and western part of the state, as well as to other states.

“To Hon. Edmund Francis Dunne belongs the credit of making the first publication relating to the history of the family in this country. It is a pamphlet of only seventeen pages, however, and is composed of extracts from the Four Masters and other works on Irish history; but, small as it is, it is an exceedingly valuable compilation, and shows, in brief, the wonderful history of a family whose origin dates so far back that it becomes lost in the misty past. In order to place the historical extracts in more permanent form for the benefit of whoever may be interested, they are, by his permission, reproduced here, together with many others bearing on the history of the family.

“Irish scholars inform us that the ancient orthography of the name Magennis is Mag Aenghusa. O’Hart, in his great work on Irish Pedigrees, states that in olden times in Ireland society consisted of an aggregation of tribes or clans, and family names, as we use them, were unknown until the eleventh century. Individual members of the tribe, therefore, were designated by a name indicative of some distinguishing personal peculiarity. The word Aongus or Acneas, derived from aon, excellent, and gus, strength, is the root of Guinness, MacGuinness, Innes, Ennis, etc.* Cionog, (or Cionga,) brother of Ros, who is No. 63 on the ‘O’Farrel’ pedigree, was the ancestor of Mac Aonghuis, (oneeth,) which has been anglicised into the various forms of the name we find to-day.†

“According to Molloy’s Irish Grammar, page 7, Dublin edition, 1867, in the Irish writing of the word there is no h after g, but the g has a dot over it, and when g or d are dotted and occur in the middle or at the end of a word they are silent, but have the effect of lengthening the preceding vowel. By usage, h is inserted in English after an Irish dotted letter to denote the dot. The word Aenghusa is, therefore, pronounced in Irish, Aen-us-a, with the accent on the first syllable. In time, for euphony, says Molloy, page 12, the final a was dropped, and the word became Aen-us, anglicised to Ennis or Innes.

“The word Mag is Irish for son. It is generally anglicised mac, but sometimes, as with this name, it is preserved in both forms. It appears in Irish also as mac. The son of Ennis, therefore, by the use of this prefix, became Mag Ennis, or he wrote it Mac-Ennis, if he chose, and thus this name, in the course of a thousand years, has been recorded by different writers as Magennis, Maginnis, Mac Ennis and Mac Innes. By a strange freak some writers have preserved both the c and the g termination of mac and mag by writing it McGennis, McGinness, while others have it McGuinness and M'Guinness, and some write it Guinness, dropping the m altogether. The last transformation is to write it Meginness, which was evidently brought about by substituting e for c, although it does not clearly appear why it is done. But there is no end to the change in names, as well as everything else in nature.

*O’Hart’s Irish Pedigrees, p. 35, Dublin edition, 1881.

†Ibid, p. 156.

“As mac signifies son, ua signifies a grandson, and by an extension of meaning, any descendent; but it is from this the anglicised O' comes for the same purpose. Ui is the nominative plural of ua, (Latinized and anglicised hui or hy,) and is applied to a tribe or family as O' is to an individual.* From the foregoing the reader will clearly understand the meaning of Mac and O' when applied to Irish names—simply son and grandson.

“There was but one original Magennis family in Ireland; therefore, all who bear the name in any of its modifications in Europe, America, or Australia, undoubtedly derive their descent from the same parent stem.

“All well-versed writers inform us that the Irish people have the most ancient records in their own language of any people in Europe. Full details are preserved of events as far back as six hundred or seven hundred years before Christ, and the genealogy of the different noble families is accurately preserved as far back as 450 B. C., and of these families, that of Magennis is one of the most distinguished.* It is not often that a private individual of the present day can find his name mentioned in the standard works of the history of his country, but it is hardly possible to find a history of Ireland in which the name of Magennis is not repeatedly mentioned as prominent in the stirring scenes therein described.

“A few extracts relating to members of the family will show the part they bore in those early days of Irish history. About 450 B. C., according to the chronology of the ‘Fair of Carmen,’ Milesius was a king in the extreme northern part of Spain. In that year eight sons of Milesius, with a fleet of 160 vessels, set out from what is now Corunna, on the north coast of Spain, and conquered Ireland. Five of the sons were drowned in effecting a landing, Heber, Heremon and Amergin surviving. Heber took Munster, Heremon had Leinster and Connaught, and to Einih-Ir, (son of the brother, Ir,) was assigned the part now known as Ulster, anciently known as Ultonia. The Ultonians were kings of Ulster for upwards of seven hundred years, and occasionally one of the line attained supreme power over the whole island. About 151 B. C. one of these Ultonians, named Rory, became monarch of Ireland.†

“The Irish way of writing his name is Rughruid-he, that is as shown by the h with the g and d dotted, hence silent. Now, a final e is also silent when immediately preceded by a dotted d or g.‡ Hence, of the word Rughruid there remains for pronunciation only Ru-ru, (accent on the first,) anglicised Rury, and now Rory.§ His descendants are known as the Clan-na Rory, clan meaning offspring. The Magennis family became the leading family of the descendants of Rory, and hence head of the clan.

“In the year 322, A. D., according to Judge Dunne’s compilation, a combination was made against the Clan-na Rory, the head of which was then king of Ulster, by the monarch of Ireland and the three Heremonian princes, known as the ‘Three Collas,’—the monarch furnishing the army and the Three Collas commanding it. The Ultonians were attacked, and, after a seven days battle, defeated, their palace of Emania burned, and the Clan-na Rory driven back to the extreme northeastern part of Ulster—to the counties of Down and Antrim, where they made a stand, maintained their independence, and organized there the new Kingdom of Ulidia, called, sometimes, Dal-Aradia.

“The descent from King Rughruidhe, or Rory, is given by Irish antiquarians in the following order: Rory to Conall Cearnach—the great warrior—to Tiprait Tireach—thirtieth king of Ulster—to Fiacha Araidhe, thirty-seventh king of Ulster—to Conall, whose brother, Saraan, was the last Ultonian king of Ulster, having been driven into Ulidia by the Three Collas, A. D. 332. The descent continues to Aenghusa, 12th in descent from Conall, and from this Aenghusa comes the family name of Magennis, in the manner before stated.*

“As family names were not introduced until the eleventh century—over eight hundred years ago—and the annals are as yet indexed only by family names, it would be a great task to trace the notices of the clan prior to the eleventh century. From that time down it is comparatively easy.

“The Magennis family had its armorial bearings also. The late Eugene O’Curry, Professor of Irish History and Archaeology in the Catholic University of Dublin, was regarded as the greatest among Irish antiquarians. He published two series of lectures; the first in 1861, entitled 'Manuscript Materials for Irish History;' the second in 1873, entitled 'Manners and Customs of the Ancient Irish.' In the latter series he recounts an important discussion as to the right of the Magennis family to bear the 'Red Hand of Ulster,' thus: 'About the year 1680 a controversy sprang up among some of the bards of Ulster as to what race, by ancient right, the armorial bearing of Ulster, the "Red Hand," belonged. Some person named Carmac said or wrote something, which I have never seen, to the effect that the "Red Hand" belonged by right to the Clan O'Neill, but he was called to account for so saying by Diarmait, the son of Laoighseal. Mac au Bhaird (called in English Louis Ward) wrote a poem of seventeen quatrains, in which he adduces many historical reasons to prove that the Red Hand of Ulster belonged, by right, to the Ulidians of Rudrician or Irian race, of whom Mac Enis, (or Magennis,) of the County Down, was the chief." This poem* begins:

"O Cormac! remember what is right;
Take not from the Irian blood its honor.
Justice is the best argument.
The race is not now in bountiful affluence.'

"It seems from a subsequent reference to this subject by O'Curry, that the author of this poem was, himself, of the Clan O'Neill, and that he felt bound to acknowledge the justice of the claim of the Magennis family.

"Judge Dunne thinks there is much reason to believe that the 'Red Hand' should belong to the family of Magennis rather than that of O'Neill. It is always spoken of as the 'Red Hand of Ulster.' The family of Magennis, he continues, represents the old Ultonians, the original Ulster kings, of the time of Ir, whereas the O'Neills are from the south, of the line of Heremon, and came into power in the north at a comparatively recent date, about one hundred years after the Three Collas had burned Emania, and driven the Ultonians into Ulidia, or about 432 A. D.

“There is not in all Europe, continues this same writer, an armorial bearing of more distinction, or about which there has been more discussion, than that of the ‘Red Hand,’ and as matters now stand, the family of Magennis seems to have the best of it, and they are not slow in asserting their rights in the matter. Richard Magennis, Esq.,* of Warrington, County Down, emblazons the hand in his coat of arms, and so probably will all other members of the family who desire to preserve the remembrance of its ancient dignity and high standing in ages of long ago.

“Another view of the question, though, is that the ‘Red Hand’ was part of the royal arms of Ulster,† passing with the sovereignty, and therefore rightly borne by the O’Neills after they became kings of that country. However this argument may be reconciled with the history of heraldry, the O’Neills have carried this blazon over too many fields of victory, and have their possession of it too firmly planted in the poetry of Ireland to ever be deprived of it. The most the O’Briens or Magennises can now expect is a recognition of their ancient exclusive and present joint right to the use of it.

“Judge Dunne calls attention to the variation in the orthography of Irish names, and says that a word of explanation may not be out of place. The Irish language is radically different from the English, and it is impossible to represent all Irish sounds by English letters. In anglicising Irish names uniformity could have been secured only by the existence, in Ireland, of some standard authority acceptable to Irish families. During the time the change was taking place the English laws not only permitted no institution of that kind, but it involved a penal offense for the native Irish to know how to read or write at all.* Naturally there was no concert of action in anglicising the names, and many variations occurred. It is only within the last few years that Irish scholars have taken the matter in hand and shown the correct Irish form of different names. As soon as that is once definitely established, the general tendency will be to conform to that spelling as fast as the change can conveniently be made. The true English form of this name, as settled by O'Donovan, is Magennis.

*Burke’s Heraldic History, Vol. II, p. 371.

†Judge Dunne’s Notes on the Magennis Family, p. 11.

“The Magennis family, it has been clearly shown, is not only one of the oldest, but one of the most illustrious in the world, and its members should take pride in keeping up its history. There are very few families that can trace their ancestry back for a thousand years; or whose ancestors have passed through more vicissitudes and trials, endured greater hardships to maintain their status, or who have maintained their individuality in a higher degree through the centuries than the family now under consideration. It has shown a long line of Lords, Earls and representative men; has furnished scores of members who have taken high rank as professional men, divines and educators, and men whose valor and prowess have been shown on many ensanguined fields.”

GREAT-GREAT-GRANDFATHER.

WILLIAM MCGINNESS, the head of the immediate family in America, with which this genealogy has to deal, was the eldest son of a family of five or six children. He was born in County Down, Ireland, in the latter half of the eighteenth century. The exact date of his birth has not been ascertained, but evidently it was sometime between 1750 and 1760.

He was married, about the year 1780, in County Down, to Martha Wilson, a Scotch woman. Their descendants, who are of Scotch-Irish origin, may be found in many States of the Union, and many of them have figured prominently in military, political, commercial and professional life.

Shortly after the birth of their eldest son, James, Mr. McGinness emigrated to America, and was located, for a time, in Lancaster county, Pa., where many of the early immigrants settled. He appears to have come to this country about the year 1782, but the precise date cannot be stated with certainty. His wife, with her infant son, sailed several months later, and, after a perilous voyage of three months, landed in Philadelphia, where she was met by her husband.

They first settled at Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pa., where a relative, who had probably immigrated some time before, was then located. Here they remained a few years, after which they removed to Staunton, in what is now Augusta county, Va., where they continued to reside a number of years; but, on account of slavery existing there, and being bitterly opposed to it, they removed from Virginia, shortly after the year 1796, to what is now Findlay township, Allegheny county, Pa., and settled near Cavett's Mills. From there they removed to what is now Shenango township, Crawford county, Pa., shortly before the formation of that county, in 1800, where they purchased a farm of 200 acres, about fourteen miles west of Meadville, in the valley of the Shenango, on which they permanently located, and here continued to reside during the remainder of their lives, being engaged in farming.

Mr. McGinness was identified with the Seceder church of Crawford county. But few details of his life have come down to us, which is greatly to be regretted, as incidents connected with his pioneer life could not fail to be both interesting and instructive.

The date of his death has not been ascertained, but it must have been previous to the year 1817, as the following will show :

A deed recorded in Crawford county, Pa., conveying 200 acres of land in Shenango township, said county, to James McGinness and Adam Stewart, administrators of the estate of William McGinness, deceased, in trust, and for the use of the heirs of said William McGinness, is dated Jan. 10, 1817, and acknowledged before Thomas Atkinson, a "Justice of the Peace" of Crawford county. Consideration, $100. Witnesses: J. A. Blossom and Thomas Atkinson. Signed by William Griffith, of Burlington, New Jersey, and John B. Wallace, of Philadelphia, Pa. Attorney, Harm Jan Huidekoper.

This property was afterwards conveyed to Robert Cotton, of Crawford county, Pa., by deed bearing date June 16, 1817. Consideration, $582. Witnesses: John Phillips and Michael Law. Signed by James McGinness and Mary his wife; John McGinness and Margaret his wife; William McGinness and Elizabeth his wife. Acknowledged before A. McCurdy, a "Justice of the Peace" for Allegheny county, Pa.

This homestead farm is now owned by Mr. Hugh Blair, who, at present writing, resides on it.

Mr. and Mrs. McGinness died on their farm in Crawford county, and were buried in the neighboring graveyard. Five children were born to them, viz., James, John, Martha, Elizabeth and William. They all grew to maturity, married and had families. A separate sketch is given of each.

FAMILY OF JAMES MCGINNESS,

OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PA.

JAMES MCGINNESS, the eldest son of William McGinness, Sr., was born in the year 1781, in County Down, Ireland, and was but a child when he was brought from his native country to America.

He spent his youthful days, mostly, at Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pa., and at Staunton, Va., removing with his parents to Allegheny county, Pa., and thence to what is now Crawford county, Pa., in the latter part of the eighteenth century. He received such educational advantages as the schools of those days afforded.

In the early part of the present century, he returned to Allegheny county, Pa., and was located, for a time, at Cavett's Mills. He followed farming, and was also engaged, at times, in making mould-board plows, sleds, harrows, and all kinds of farming implements, being quite skilled at that work, but not having learned the trade.

About the year 1806 or 1807, he went to Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., to erect a large horse-power mill on the farm of Samuel Scott, Sr. While here, young James formed an attachment for Mary, the third daughter of Samuel Scott, to whom he was united in marriage July 16, 1807. This determines the relationship between the McGinness and Scott families.

The young couple remained at the home of Samuel Scott until May 4, 1809, when they removed to Cavett's Mills, Findlay township, Allegheny county, Pa., and here lived in true pioneer style, in a little log cabin, 8x10 feet, without window, chimney or floor, until a new house, which was being built by a Mr. Cruiks, was ready for occupancy.

In the spring of 1814, they returned to Robinson township, where they rented the "Joseph Logan farm," adjoining the Scott farm. Here James McGinness died of typhus fever, July 8, 1817, at the age of 36 years. He was buried in Union graveyard, Robinson township, his grave being marked by a plain tablet, suitably inscribed. He followed in the footsteps of his father in religious views, being identified with the Seceder church at the time of his death.

Mrs. McGinness married, as her second husband, Joseph Logan, of Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., April 14, 1823.* She died March 30, 1849, and was buried in Union graveyard.

James and Mary (Scott) McGinness had five children born to them, viz., Samuel W., William, John, James and Elizabeth.

SKETCH No. 1.

SAMUEL WILSON MCGINNESS,† the eldest son of James and Mary (Scott) McGinness, was born May 4, 1809, in a little log cabin at Cavett's Mills, Findlay township, Allegheny county, Pa., and here spent five years of his early life.

In the spring of 1814 his parents removed to the "Logan farm" in Robinson township. When old enough he attended school in a little log school-house near where Union church now stands. After the death of his father, he removed with his mother and family to the Scott homestead, same township, and here remained a few months. On Christmas day, 1817, he went with his uncle, David George, to "Cherry Valley," Washington county, Pa., where he attended school until the spring of 1819, when he returned to Robinson township. Shortly after, in June, 1819, he went to live with his uncle, William Scott, near Cadiz, Ohio, traveling on horseback with his uncle to that place. Here he attended school several months, and returned home the following winter, remaining until the spring of 1820, when he returned to his uncle's, who, in the meantime, had moved from Cadiz to Brooke (now Hancock) county, West Virginia. He remained in Brooke county, attending school, about a year.

Being bereft, at the early age of eight years, of the care and guidance of a father, his welfare, early in life, became one of dependence upon his own efforts. At the age of thirteen years, in the year 1822, he came to Pittsburgh to learn the trade of a cabinet-maker, with a Mr. Liggett. Being dissatisfied with the work, he remained but a short time, and, in the spring of 1823, returned to his uncle's in West Virginia. About this time his mother was married to Joseph Logan, and with him removed to his farm adjoining that of her father. Late in the autumn of 1823, Samuel returned home, and the following spring commenced farming for his step-father, at which work he continued until Dec. 24, 1824, when he went to Burgetts-town, Pa., intending to learn his chosen trade—that of a cabinet-maker—with Ebenezer Boice. He was to serve an apprenticeship of five years, but, in the meantime, in June, 1829, Mr. Boice quit the business, and Samuel returned to his home in Robinson township.

In August, 1829, he walked to the home of his uncle, William Scott, in West Virginia—a distance of thirty-three miles—making the journey in two days.

From there he went with his uncle to Mansfield, Richland county, Ohio, and with him worked out the road-tax due on the lands of his mother, his aunt, Nancy George, and his uncle, William Scott. In September, having completed the work, they returned to West Virginia, and, after resting a few days, Samuel returned home on foot, making the thirty-three miles in one day. In the autumn of 1829 he commenced to build a hewed-log house on the farm of James Ross, in Robinson township, and while thus engaged boarded with Mr. Ross. Here he first saw Mary Forgey, who came to the house on an errand, and who afterwards became his wife. When this house was completed, he was engaged to build a house for William Forgey, (afterwards his father-in-law,) on the Forgey farm near Campbell's run.

At a communion service, held at Union A. R. church in the autumn of 1830, conducted by Rev. Alexander McCahan, D. D., of Canonsburg, Pa., (the congregation at that time being without a pastor,) Samuel McGinness, with thirteen others, united with that church.

Mr. McGinness was married Nov. 8, 1831, to Mary Forgey, who was born April 28, 1813, and was the eldest daughter of William and Rebecca (Thornburg) Forgey. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Dickey, then pastor of St. Clair. A. R. church, at the residence of William Forgey, in Robinson township. They remained on the Forgey farm until the autumn of 1832, when they removed to the "Stewart" stone house at Campbell's Run, which was then owned by Samuel Glass, and was very much out of repair. Mr. McGinness was engaged to remodel it. After it was finished he assisted in the construction of the first brick building used by Union congregation. It was afterwards blown down, in 1855.

In the spring of 1835, Mr. McGinness, having purchased twenty acres of the Scott farm in Robinson township, erected on this property a frame house, and, with his family, moved into it before its completion. Here they remained until April, 1837, when they removed to Allegheny City, and located first on Lacock street, removing thence, in October of the same year, to East Lane, where they remained until April, 1838, when they removed to Ohio street—Mr. McGinness continuing at carpenter work. About this time he sold his property in Robinson township to Rev. John Ekin. In December, 1838, he went with his uncle, John Thornburg, to Natchez, Miss., where he worked at his trade, receiving ample pay, until June, 1839, when he returned home.

In November, 1840, Mr. McGinness and family removed to No. 7 Knoll street, Allegheny, which property he had purchased shortly before. Here his wife, Mary, died Jan. 7, 1848, in the thirty-fifth year of her age, and was buried in the burying ground belonging to the First A. R. church, Pittsburgh, and was afterwards reinterred in the family lot in Uniondale cemetery, Allegheny, Pa. Shortly after the death of his wife, in June, 1848, Mr. McGinness, with his two daughters and housekeeper, removed to the Logan farm, to take care of his mother and step-father. The latter part of the same month his step-father, Joseph Logan, died; and in the spring of 1849 his mother died. After harvest of the latter year Mr. McGinness sold the farm which had been willed to him by his step-father, to William Hall, and returned to Allegheny, residing on Boyle street until April, 1850, when he returned to No. 7 Knoll street, where he continued to reside during the remainder of his life.

In the autumn of 1849 he formed a business partnership with Mr. James McKirdy, under the firm name of "McKirdy & McGinness, contractors and builders." After continuing in this business for a number of years, he, with the same partner, embarked in the lumber business, which was continued, to the interest of both parties, until the partnership was dissolved in the year 1884, and he retired from active business.

On Nov. 7th, 1850, Mr. McGinness married, as his second wife, Miss Sarah Armstrong, daughter of William and Sarah (Robinson) Armstrong, who was born Oct. 10, 1809, near Faughenvale, about eight miles from Londonderry, County Derry, Ireland, and came with her brothers and sisters to America in August, 1837. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home, No. 111 James street, Allegheny, by Rev. John F. McLaren, D. D., who was then pastor of the First Associate Reformed church, Pittsburgh, of which church Miss Armstrong was a member.

Mr. McGinness transferred his membership from Union A. R. church to the First Associate Reformed (now Second U. P.) church, Pittsburgh, about the year 1837, during the pastorate of Rev. Jos. R. Kerr. In 1850 he again transferred to the First A. R. Church, of Allegheny, of which Dr. John T. Pressly was then pastor, and Aug. 9, 1854, was elected ruling elder in that congregation. He remained in this connection until the call came to cease earthly duties and enter into the enjoyment of greater privileges. In answer to that summons he passed peacefully away Nov. 5, 1890, in the eighty-second year of his age. His remains were interred in the family lot in Uniondale cemetery, where a granite tablet, suitably inscribed, marks his last resting place. His death resulted from "heart failure." His widow, now in her eighty-third year, survives him, and resides at the old homestead, No. 7 Knoll street, Allegheny, Pa.

The following expression from the pen of his pastor, Rev. W. J. Robinson, D. D., is a worthy tribute to his memory :

"Mr. McGinness was a Christian, and his religion entered into his whole life. He was not a saint in the church, and a mere worldling in the world. In his business life his Christian principles were as manifest as in his church life. In his business habits he was prompt, punctual, diligent, systematic, scrupulously honest and thoroughly reliable. 'Owe no man anything, but to love one another,' was a precept governing his business life. In his home life he was a kind, loving, considerate husband and father; hospitable and cordial in his welcome to friends and strangers to his fireside; and as the head of the house he was faithful in maintaining the ordinances of family religion and family worship. 'His children rise up and call him blessed.'

"Of the church he was a faithful and consistent member, diligent in attendance on ordinances, cordial and sympathetic in his intercourse with the brethren, always ready to bear a helping hand in the enterprises of the church, and commending to the world, by his life, the profession which he made.

"As a ruling elder he was zealous for the glory of God and the welfare of the church. He accepted the responsibilities of his office. He endeavored fully to discharge its duties. He often lamented his inability to do better service. He took a lively interest in everything that concerned the work, the welfare, the peace and prosperity of the church. He was rarely absent from meetings of session. He never attempted to shirk a painful duty. He was often at the bedside of the sick, and was a welcome visitor in the homes of the members of the congregation. While health permitted, he carefully looked after the families in his district.

"For nearly two years before his death he was almost entirely confined to his home by the disease which finally carried him off. Much of the latter part of this time he was confined to his bed. From the nature of his disease he was oftentimes in great suffering. But he bore it all with patience and cheerful submission. 'It is all right,' was his oft-repeated expression. He had committed himself long before to his covenant-keeping God, and he had no fear. His faith was strong. His hope was an anchor to his soul. He was ready when the Master called. He fell peacefully asleep in Jesus. 'There remaineth, therefore, a rest for the people of God.' W. J. R."

The following action was taken by the session of the the First United Presbyterian church of Allegheny, with reference to his death.

"In the death of Mr. Samuel W. McGinness, who entered into his rest Nov. 5, 1890, this congregation has lost one of its consistent members and faithful overseers. It is fitting that we pay a tribute to his memory and record our appreciation of his Christian character and official faithfulness. For a period of about forty years Mr. McGinness was a member of the congregation, and for thirty-six years he served it officially in the office of the ruling eldership. In all these years he approved himself an earnest follower of the Master, and a devoted and conscientious ruler in the house of God. Among the people of God he was recognized as a humble and consistent exemplar of the truth. He endeavored to walk in wisdom toward them who are without. In the exercise of his office he was diligent in the discharge of his duties; watchful for the interests of the truth, and for the welfare of souls; considerate in his judgments of life and conduct; wise in his counsels; firm and decided in his convictions of duty, and yet ready to yield his opinions and preferences to the judgment of his brethren. In his intercourse with men, and especially with the members of the session, he was uniformly kind, courteous and cordial. By his entire walk and conversation, through a long life of Christian usefulness 'he obtained witness that he was righteous,' both in the community in which he lived, and in the church of which he was a member.

"We extend to the bereaved widow and family the assurance of our sincere sympathy in their affliction, and commend them to him who is the Father of mercies and the God of all consolation.

"BY ORDER OF THE SESSION."

Samuel and Mary (Forgey) McGinness had six children, three of whom—James, Mary and Margaret—grew to maturity, and three died in infancy. By his second wife, Sarah Armstrong, he had one son, Joseph Wilson.

I. JAMES MCGINNESS, the eldest son, was born Feb. 10, 1833, in Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., and was four years of age when his parents removed to Allegheny, Pa., where his childhood and youth were passed. He attended school in the Third ward, Allegheny, one of his teachers being Campbell B. Herron, now a member of the firm of "Spang, Chalfant & Co., Iron and Steel Manufacturers," Allegheny City.

When about fourteen years of age he was employed by James Gosling, a dry goods merchant on Market street, Pittsburgh, and continued in his employ until 1851, when he went with his uncle, William Brown, to Kittanning to learn the trade of a nailer. He had been there but a few months when the work was suspended and he returned home to Allegheny. He then turned his attention to school, and studied book-keeping at Iron City College, Pittsburgh, after which which he took a course of penmanship from Professor Chamberlin.

About this time the "gold fever" was at its height, and he decided to go to California. He accordingly left his home on the morning of Feb. 22, 1852, for New York City, from which place he sailed—accompanied by his uncle William Neely and friends—on the second day of March, on the “William Penn.” They arrived at Chagres, on the Isthmus of Panama, on the 12th day of March. From there they went, in small boats, up the Chagres river to Gorgona, from which place they traveled on foot, sending their baggage on mules, to Panama—a distance of twenty-eight miles. They left Panama March 22, on the steamer “Oregon,” arriving at San Francisco, Cal., in the early part of April, and reaching Sacramento April 8th or 9th.

For a short time after reaching California, James was engaged in gold-mining for Mr. Cyrus McCluskey at “Doty’s Flats,” but, finding the work too heavy for him, he sought lighter employment. In June, 1852, he secured a situation in the sheet-iron and tin-ware house of Haworth, Ells & Co., Sacramento. While he was in their employ, the great fire of 1852 occurred, which laid in ashes almost the entire city of Sacramento. The loss was estimated at $10,000,000, Haworth, Ells & Co. being among the sufferers, but immediately re-built. James lost all his clothes and bedding.

In the latter part of 1853, he and his uncle, William Neely, embarked in the brick-making business—James still continuing in the employ of Haworth, Ells & Co. He only remained in this business a short time, as, on account of the market being over-stocked, and from other causes, they were unsuccessful, and lost considerable money. They closed up their business in the summer of 1854.

In the spring of 1855—Haworth, Ells & Co. having dissolved partnership—he was engaged as agent for the “California Stage Company,” being stationed, at times, at Folsom, Sacramento and Oroville. In June, 1857, he quit working for the stage company, and was, for a time, in Chico, Butte county, Cal., where he obtained a clerkship in the store of Mr. Thomas Bidwell, and while there attended to the post-office. He remained in this employment about a year, after which time he was again engaged by the stage company, acting as road-agent and paymaster for the same, this necessitating his making frequent journeys to Nevada City, Auburn, Illinoistown, Pine Grove, Rattlesnake Bar, Cooper's Ravine and Folsom. His frequent letters to his parents and sisters were full of interesting accounts of California life, with vivid descriptions of his travels—the scenery and curiosities. Time and space forbid giving his varied experiences, and the kindness of his many friends in his Western home.

He remained in Sacramento until 1861 or '62, when he went to Gold Hill, Storey county, Nevada, where he was employed by Messrs. Harold, Hamilton and Newman as assistant superintendent and book-keeper of the "Empire Mill and Mining Company." While at this place, he was married, May 6, 1863, in St. Paul's Episcopal church, Virginia City, Nev., by Rev. F. Rising, to Miss Isabella Backus, of Coxackie, N. Y., whom he had met when she was visiting her sister, Mrs. Wright, with whom he boarded.

After marriage they located in Gold Hill, where they remained about two years, when the mining company failed, and they removed to San Francisco, where they remained about six months. In the meantime, Mr. McGinness went to British Columbia, returning in a short time to his family, after which they removed to Crescent Mills, Plumas county, Cal., where he was engaged for about two years as superintendent of the "Crescent Mill and Mining Company." He then went to the Black Hawk mines, and on returning to Crescent Mills for his family, he accepted a position on the line of the then new Central Pacific Railroad, at Truckee, Cal., to which place the road had been completed. Not being able to stand the intensely cold climate of the latter place, situated as it is almost at the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains, they were obliged to seek a milder climate ; consequently they left Truckee and removed to Austin, Lander county, Nev. After locating his wife and family here, Mr. McGinness went on other mining trips, returning from time to time to Austin.

After a time he was appointed deputy sheriff of Elko county, Nev., which position he held at the time of his death, which occurred, at Elko, Feb. 7, 1871. He was buried in the cemetery at Elko.

Some time after his death, the widowed mother with three small children removed to San Francisco, where they continued to reside for a number of years. Here the eldest daughter, Mabel, died. In the autumn of 1884 Mrs. McGinness was married to Mr. James C. Reed, of New York City, to which place she and her only remaining daughter, Louise, removed. Here they now reside, Mr. Reed being engaged as U. S. Shipping Commissioner.

James and Isabella (Backus) McGinness had born to them the following children :

1. GEORGE THORNBURG, born June 5, 1864, at Gold Hill, Storey county, Nev., and, at present writing, resides in San Francisco, Cal., being employed in the Freight Auditor's office of the Southern Pacific R. R. company at that place.
2. MABEL, born Aug. 7, 1866, at Crescent Mills, Plumas county, Cal., and died June 30, 1877, in San Francisco, Cal.
3. ROWLEY WILSON, born Oct. 4, 1868, at Crescent Mills, Cal., and died July 10, 1869, in Austin, Nev.

II. WILLIAM MCGINNESS was born July 21, 1835, in Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., and died Aug. 1, 1839, in Allegheny City.

III. MARY JANE MCGINNESS was born Oct. 14, 1837, on East Lane, (now Madison avenue,) Allegheny, Pa. Her girlhood days were spent mostly in that city, attending school in the Third ward. After the death of her mother, in the year 1848, she removed with her father to the "Logan" farm in Robinson township, where she attended school in the little log school house of the district during that winter, returning to Allegheny in the autumn of 1849, where she again pursued her studies in the Third ward.

In girlhood she united with what is now the First U. P. church, Allegheny, afterwards transferring her membership to Mt. Pisgah Presbyterian church, Rev. P. S. Jennings pastor, with which church she is now connected.

She was married, Nov. 30, 1858, to Benjamin Ford, youngest son of John and Mary (Jenkins) Ford, of Allegheny City. He was born in Worcestershire, England, Dec. 26, 1832, and came with his parents to America about the year 1843, locating in Allegheny, Pa. The ceremony was performed at her home, No. 7 Knoll street, Allegheny, by Rev. John T. Pressly, D. D.

Mrs. Ford remained at the home of her parents during the time in which her husband made a trip to New Orleans, as he was then engaged in steam-boating. After his return, they went to house-keeping at the home of Mr. Ford's mother, No. 15 Knoll street, Allegheny, where they remained until after the birth of two children, when they removed to Beltzhoover's mill, Baldwin township, Allegheny county, Pa., Mr. Ford having purchased an interest in the mill. Here they remained until 1864, when the mill was sold and they returned to Allegheny, residing on Jackson street until the autumn of 1865, when they removed to what is now Green Tree borough, Allegheny county, Pa., where Mr. Ford purchased a property and erected a house. Here the family now resides. Mr. Ford is identified with the American Steam Boiler Insurance Company, as their chief inspector for Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and part of Ohio, being stationed in Pittsburgh, Pa. He has been a member of the school board and borough council.

IV. MARGARET ANN MCGINNESS was born Aug. 10, 1840, on Ohio street, Allegheny, Pa. Her entire life was spent in her native city, with the exception of one year, during which time she resided with her father and family on the Logan farm, in Robinson township, and while there attended the district school. She received the greater part of her education in the Third ward, Allegheny, completing her studies in the First ward, Pittsburgh. In early womanhood she united with the First United Presbyterian church, Allegheny, and remained in its communion until her death.

She was married at her home on Knoll street, Allegheny, by Dr. John T. Pressley, April 8, 1862, to Samuel A. Chamberlin, of Pittsburgh, Pa. They first went to housekeeping on Washington street, Allegheny, where they remained about two years, after which they removed to Esplanade street, where Mrs. Chamberlin died Aug. 13, 1866, at the age of twenty-six years. She was buried in the family lot in Uniondale cemetery.

“Calm on the bosom of thy God,
 Fair spirit rest thee now,
 E'en while with ours thy footsteps trod,
 His seal was on thy brow.
 Dust to its narrow house beneath,
 Soul to its place on high ;
 They that have seen thy look in death,
 No more may fear to die.”

Several years after his wife's death Mr Chamberlin married as his second wife, Miss Emma Johnston, of Baltimore, Md. They now reside in Sewickley, Allegheny county, Pa., where Mr. Chamberlin has been for many years engaged in the mercantile business.

Samuel and Margaret (McGinness) Chamberlin had one daughter, viz.:

VII. JOSEPH WILSON MCGINNESS, the only child of Samuel McGinness' second wife, Sarah Armstrong, was born May 23, 1853, on Knoll street, Allegheny, Pa. He first attended school at the age of five years, in the Third ward, Allegheny—Mrs. L. H. Eaton being his first teacher. From there he went to the Grant street school, Pittsburgh, in the year 1867—Professor George J. Luckey, now superintendent of the Pittsburgh schools, being at that time principal. Having passed the examination for admission to the Pittsburgh Central High School, he entered that institution in September, 1868 and was graduated from the same in June, 1872, having completed the course in the Academical Department.

In July, 1872, he began his career in business life as book-keeper for Lyle, Barchfeld & McCance, Pittsburgh, where he remained until February, 1876, after which he was employed by the firm of "Thomas Hare & Bro., Saddlery Hardware." He continued with the latter firm until April, 1883, when he embarked in the carriage hardware business in partnership with William Nease and J. H. McLean, as W. Nease & Co., Liberty street, Pittsburgh, which firm name was changed in 1880, to Nease, McLean & McGinness, and so continues.

He was married May 13, 1880, to Miss Agnes J. Gibson, daughter of John H. and Lily (Allen) Gibson, who was born in Prospect, Butler county, Pa., Feb. 10, 1856. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William J. Robinson, D. D., at No. 10 Boyle street, Allegheny, Pa., which property Mr. McGinness had previously purchased, and where he and family now reside.

Joseph McGinness united with the First U. P. church, Allegheny, Feb. 1, 1866, during the pastorate of Rev. John T. Pressley, D. D., and remained in the communion of that church until February, 1891, when he transferred his membership to the Fourth U. P. church, Allegheny, now (1892) under the pastoral care of Rev. Joseph Kyle.

Mr. and Mrs. McGinness have two children, both born at No. 10 Boyle Street, Allegheny, Pa., as follows :

1. SAMUEL WILSON, born Aug. 28, 1881.
2. LILLIE, born July 2, 1883.

No. 2.

WILLIAM MCGINNESS, the second son of James and Mary (Scott) McGinness, was born March 28, 1811, in the "Cruick's" house at Cavett's Mills, Allegheny county, Pa., but spent his boyhood days mostly in Robinson township, same county—his parents having moved there, and settled on the Logan farm in the spring of 1814. After the death of his father, which occurred when William was but six years of age, he removed with his mother to the home of his grandfather, Samuel Scott, where he remained until his mother's second marriage, returning with her to the Logan farm.

He attended school, for a number of years, in a log school house near where Union church now stands. As soon as he was old enough, he went to Noblestown, Allegheny county, Pa., to learn the trade of a wagon-maker with George Huffman. Here he remained four or five years, completing his apprenticeship. He did not follow his trade long, but, about the year 1832 or 1833, engaged in teaching at "McCoy's" school in Robinson township, where he taught three terms—two before his marriage and one after.

He was married May 16, 1835, to Matilda E. Huffman, sister of George Huffman, with whom he learned his trade.

Shortly after marriage, probably in the spring of 1836, he and wife removed to Sharon, Allegheny county, Pa., where he was engaged in the mercantile business for about two years, being quite successful. He then removed to Stevenson's Mills, Washington county, Pa., where he remained three or four years. In the year 1842 or '43, he and family removed to Hickory, Washington county, Pa., where he again embarked in the mercantile business, dealing largely in wool. While he was in Philadelphia purchasing goods for his store, his wife Matilda died, April 18, 1844, aged 30 years. She was buried in Robinson's Run A. R. churchyard.

Mr. McGinness was married the second time, March 12, 1846, to Mary Tannehill, who was born Feb. 1, 1825. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Alexander Donnan, pastor of Mount Pleasant Associate Reformed church.

In the spring of 1848 Mr. McGinness discontinued his business at Hickory, and purchased a large farm in Beaver (now Lawrence) county, Pa., to which place he removed, with his family, April 21, 1848. He then engaged in farming, at which work he—assisted by his sons—continued for many years. He was elected a ruling elder in the Associate Reformed (now U. P.) church of Mount Jackson, Oct. 8, 1851, during the pastorate of Rev. John Neil, and, by his own request, was released Feb. 15, 1858. That same year he and wife transferred their membership to the Bethel U. P. church, and finally, in the year 1861, returned to Mount Jackson U. P. church, continuing in its communion during the remainder of their lives.

The infirmities of age and a complication of diseases rendered Mr. McGinness helpless for several years before his death. After much suffering, he was summoned to his reward Aug. 14, 1889, after a pilgrimage of 78 years. He died at his home near Mount Jackson. His wife, Mary, died three years and six months previous, Feb. 4, 1886. Both were buried in Hilltown cemetery, Lawrence county, Pa.

William McGinness had by his first wife, Matilda, three children, viz., James, Mary and George; and by his second wife, Mary, six children, viz.: John, Wilson, Sarah, William, Daira and Ada.

I. JAMES MCGINNESS was born April 22, 1836, in Sharon, Allegheny county, Pa., but spent his boyhood days in Washington and Beaver (now Lawrence) counties, removing with his parents to the latter county April 21, 1848. He united with the Free Presbyterian church of Mt. Jackson, in the year 1859. At the outbreak of the civil war, in response to the call for troops, he enlisted in Battery B., First Pennsylvania Artillery, commanded by Captain Cooper. He did not live to serve his country long, but, in the early part of the war, was taken sick, and consequently sent to the hospital at Washington, D. C., where he died of typhoid fever, May 22, 1862, at the age of twenty-six years. His remains were brought home by his father, and interred at Mt. Jackson. At the "roll-call" in heaven he will answer to his name.

II. MARY ANN MCGINNESS was born April 17, 1840, at Stevenson's Mills, Washington county, Pa., and removed with her parents to Hickory, Pa., and thence to the farm near Mount Jackson, Pa., in childhood. She received the greater part of her education in the schools of Mount Jackson, and in the year 1858, united with the Bethel U. P. congregation, then in charge of Rev. Samuel Alexander. She was married June 15, 1869, to William

L. Chambers, of Pleasant Unity, Westmoreland county, Pa., and after marriage removed to that place, where she continued to reside until her death, which occurred May 22, 1875, in the thirty-sixth year of her age. Mr. and Mrs. Chambers had two children born to them, as follows :

1. WILLIAM M., born March 22, 1870.
2. MARY MATILDA, born Jan. 9, 1873.

III. GEORGE JEFFERSON MCGINNESS was born April 14, 1842, at Stevenson's Mills, Washington county, Pa., but spent his boyhood days mostly, in what is now Lawrence county, Pa., receiving his early education in the schools of Mt. Jackson. He united with the Free Presbyterian church of Mt. Jackson in early life, and afterwards transferred to Illinois.

When but eighteen years of age, at the outbreak of the late war, he enlisted, with his brother James, in Battery B., First Pennsylvania Artillery, commanded by Captain Cooper. He participated in the battles of the Chickahominy, June 25-July 1, 1862; the battle of Antietam, Sept. 17, 1862, under Gen. McClellan; the battle of Gettysburg, July 1-3, 1863, under Gen. Meade, and the second battle of Bull Run, Aug 30, 1863, under Gen. Pope, at which battle the guns of Battery B. were captured by the confederates. He was also in the battles of the Wilderness, May 5-6, 1864, under Gen. Grant, and in many other engagements too numerous to mention—in all twenty-five battles and skirmishes. He lost his health in the malaria-stricken swamps of the Rappahannock and Pawmunky rivers, but was only in the hospital two weeks.

Regarding some experiences and incidents of his three years' "military life," Mr. McGinness says: "My first 'baptism of fire' was at Mechanicsville, Va., in the Peninsular Campaign under Gen. McClellan. Our battery was placed on the extreme right of our army, about five miles north of Richmond, on the Chickahominy river. We were the first to open fire upon the advancing 'hoards' of Lee, who commenced his first attack on our right flank with the 'flower of his army.' The battle was commenced in the afternoon of June 2, 1862, and only ceased when the day closed. Our battery, supported by the Pennsylvania 'Bucktails,' repulsed every attack, and when night came on, we could not sleep for the cries of the wounded and dying rebels, who covered the ground in our front. It was sad to hear them call for water. I was very sick that night, in consequence of breathing the dense smoke from burnt powder, but was all right the next day and ready for action. As soon as morning dawned the scenes of carnage and slaughter began, and continued for several hours, until we were finally compelled to retreat on account of Lee's getting in our rear. The next several days were destined to bring us more hardships than we had ever imagined—it was fighting by day and retreating by night. Finally, our provisions gave out, and our haversacks were empty. Things were becoming desperate! I asked a negro who was driving a baggage wagon, if he could give me some hard-tack. He replied, 'Lorda Massa! yes, hand me your haversack'—he filled it, and I had a sufficiency to last me until we reached our supplies on the James river. At Charles City cross-roads we lost all our guns by the rebels charging our Battery, and our infantry deserting us. Here we lost two officers, Lieutenants Danfort and Cadwalder—two as brave men as ever wore the 'blue.' We saved our ammunition wagons and brought them from the field. Our battery was captured on two different occasions—the last being at the second battle of Bull Run. At that battle we were supported by a New York regiment, which greatly hindered us from manning our guns. We were stationed near a dense pine thicket, and could not see the enemy until they were almost upon us. They made a charge and we 'opened fire' on them with double charge of canister. Here we were again deserted by our infantry support. Our horses all being shot down, it was impossible for us to save our guns. We lost here only one man—John Williams. At Gettysburg our corps was in the front, and we were the first to open fire in the afternoon of the first day's battle. It was here the lamented Gen. Reynolds was killed by a rebel sharp-shooter, and thus fell a noble and able commander. The enemy closed in on us with such fierceness and in such numbers that we were compelled to retreat southward through the town—the rebels constantly pouring shot and shell into the retreating army. We took our position on Seminary Ridge—a little to the right of where the seminary then stood. Having a good commanding position we came into battery and waited that night, for we well knew the morrow would bring death and destruction to one or the other of the grand armies. The next morning the ball was opened in earnest by the rebels, as their previous victory had given them great hopes. They commenced the attack with all their artillery, and the 'very earth trembled'; then the rebels—charging and recharging by brigades, only to be hurled back by the annihilating fire of our men—came in 'clouds,' even putting their hands upon our guns, only to be shot down by our brave boys. Gettysburg was won! The Union was saved, and our nation was preserved! All glory to the brave boys in blue!"

After returning from the war, Mr. McGinness was married, Dec. 8, 1864, to Nancy B. McCord, whose home was near Mt. Jackson, Pa. In February, 1865, they removed to the state of Illinois and first settled at Mionk, Woodford county, where they remained until the spring of 1866, when they sold their property and purchased a farm near Wenona, Marshall county. Here they remained until the year 1871, when they disposed of this property, and bought two-hundred and seventy-eight and a half acres near LeRoy, McClean county—thirteen miles south of Bloomington.

In the spring of 1887 they went to Sidney, Cheyenne county, Nebraska, where they took up a "homestead" of one hundred and sixty acres; a "free claim" of one hundred and sixty one acres, and purchased three hundred and twenty acres, making in all six hundred and forty one acres—all adjoining. They returned to their farm in Le Roy, Ill., in March, 1890, and here they now reside, Mr. McGinness being engaged in farming on an extensive scale.

Mr. and Mrs. McGinness had six children, all born in the state of Illinois as follows:

1. WILLIAM JAMES, born June 23, 1867.
2. GEORGE MANNING, born Dec. 13, 1868; died Feb. 27, 1873.
3. JOHN DAVIDSON, born May 14, 1872.
4. EMMA ADDA, born April 27, 1874; died Jan. 30, 1875.
5. BESSIE MAY, born Oct. 28, 1876.
6. SAMUEL ROBERT, born Sept. 23, 1878.

IV. JOHN MURDOCK MCGINNESS, the eldest child of the second wife, Mary Tannchill, was born Jan. 23, 1847, in Hickory, Washington county, Pa., and was but an infant when his parents removed to Beaver (now Lawrence) county, Pa. Here he spent his boyhood days, receiving his early education in the common schools of the district, and completing his studies at a select school in Mt. Jackson. In the year 1869 he went to Wenona, Marshall county, Ill., where his brother George was located, but only remained there a short time. He removed that same year to Dickinson county, Kansas, where he bought and homesteaded land near Abilene. In the autumn of 1875 he returned to his home near Mt. Jackson, and since that time has been engaged in farming. Mr. McGinness united with the United Presbyterian church of Wenona, Ill., in the year 1869, and on returning home, connected with the U. P. church of Mt. Jackson, where he now worships. He was married Nov. 4, 1891, to Miss Ada Hopper, daughter of John Hopper, of Lawrence county, Pa. They now reside on a farm near Mt. Jackson, Pa.

V. WILSON TANNEHILL MCGINNESS was born Aug. 18, 1849, near Mt. Jackson, Lawrence county, Pa., and died of scarlet fever Feb. 26, 1855. He is buried in Hilltown cemetery, Lawrence county.

VI. SARAH JANE MCGINNESS was born June 27, 1851, in Lawrence county, Pa. She attended the common schools of her native county, and a select school in Mt. Jackson, after which she completed her studies at Oakdale Academy, where she attended two terms. She became a member of the U. P. church of Mt. Jackson, in early life, and afterward transferred her membership to her different places of residence. She was married at her home near Mt. Jackson, June 12, 1884, to Rev. Robert B. Taggart, who was born in East Palestine, Ohio, Sept. 16, 1842. Shortly after marriage they removed to New Wilmington, Pa., where they purchased a property, Rev. Taggart being Professor in Westminster College during the years 1885-6. They removed from New Wilmington to Bellevue, Allegheny county, Pa., where they remained but a short time, and after some changes of residence, removed to Clinton, Allegheny county. Here they continued to reside—Rev. Taggart being pastor of the U. P. church at that place—until April, 1892, when they removed to Harriman, Roane county, Tenn., Rev. Taggart having been recently appointed to take charge of a new mission work at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Taggart have one son, viz.:

JOSEPH HARPER, born Dec. 1, 1885.

VII. WILLIAM SCOTT MCGINNESS was born April 14, 1854, near Mount Jackson, Lawrence county, Pa. He received his primary education in the schools of the vicinity of his home, after which he attended a select school in Mount Jackson, two terms at Oakdale Academy, and completed his studies at Edinboro, Pa. He was married, Oct. 11, 1877, to Ella J. Wallace, who died at their home near Mount Jackson, Nov. 15, 1887, leaving two little daughters. Mr. McGinness married as his second wife, Lizzie Belle Davison, Dec. 24, 1889, and now resides at the old homestead, being engaged in farming. In the autumn of 1874 he became a member of the U. P. church of Mount Jackson, and since 1875 has been leader of the church choir. He was a trustee of the church and superintendent of the Sabbath school for four years, and is now president of the "Young People's Society" connected with that church.

William and Ella (Wallace) McGinness had three children, as follows:

1. MYRTLE D., born Sept. 28, 1879; died Aug. 19, 1881.
2. MARY J., born Aug. 31, 1882.
3. LAURENA, born July 24, 1885.

VIII. DUIRA ELIZABETH MCGINNESS was born Sept. 27, 1857, on the homestead farm in Lawrence county, Pa. She received her early education at Hickory Creek school, after which she attended Mount Jackson Academy, completing her studies at Edinboro, Pa. In early womanhood she united with the U. P. church of Mount Jackson, and, after her marriage, transferred her membership to the Presbyterian church of New Brighton, Pa., where her husband was a member, and from there successively to Beaver Falls and Westfield, Pa. She was married at her home Nov. 6, 1879, by Rev. Hugh R. McClelland, to John M. Critchlow, and removed with her husband to Burning Springs, West Virginia, Mr. Critchlow being engaged at that time in the lumber business at the above named place. In the year 1881 they removed to New Brighton, Pa., and thence to Beaver Falls, Pa., Mr. Critchlow being engaged, successively, as superintendent and secretary of the Beaver Falls Gas Co.; assistant superintendent of the Bridgewater Gas Co., and secretary and general manager of the American Gas Improvement Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa. While connected with the latter corporation, they removed, in the year 1888, to a farm which they had purchased in North Beaver township, Lawrence county, Pa., where they remained about eighteen months, after which time, they rented their farm and removed to a farm near Titusville, Crawford county, Pa., Oct. 1, 1889, where they now reside. They had five children, as follows:

1. FRANK MINER, born Sept. 10, 1881.
2. JOSEPH MCGINNESS, born May 27, 1883.
3. FRANCES, born May 25, 1885; died May — 1887.
4. FLORENCE GAY, born May 30, 1887.
5. WALTER, born June —, 1890.

IX. ADA REBECCA MCGINNESS was born May 17, 1860, in Lawrence county, Pa., where she continued to reside until her death, which occurred Feb. 1, 1874. She is buried at Hilltown cemetery, Lawrence county, Pa.

No. 3.

JOHN MCGINNESS, the third son of James and Mary (Scott) McGinness, was born Feb. 13, 1813, at Cavett's Mills, Findlay township, Allegheny county, Pa.

In the spring of 1814, his parents moved to the Logan farm, in Robinson township, Allegheny county, and from there, after the death of his father, he was taken to the home of his grandfather, Samuel Scott, where he remained until his mother's second marriage, when the family moved back to the Logan farm. He attended school in the little log school house near Union church.

When quite young, he learned to make shoes with James McCalister, who had a shop on the Scott farm where the brick house now stands. After learning his trade, young John fitted up a shop on the Forgey farm, occasionally going through the country, as was the custom in those days, making shoes—remaining at the home of those by whom he was employed as long as his services were required. After working at his trade in this manner for some time, he went to Birmingham—now South Side, Pittsburgh—and embarked in the shoe business on his own account.

In the year 1836 he was married to Hannah Cubbage, daughter of George Cubbage, of what is now Mansfield, Allegheny county, Pa., and went to housekeeping in Birmingham, still continuing in the shoe business, which he carried on successfully until his death.

Mr. McGinness was a ruling elder in the Associate Reformed (now U. P.) church of Birmingham, at the time of his death. Rev. James H. Buchanan was at that time pastor.

The Master did not grant him long years of service, but called him to his reward in the noon-day of life. While he and family were on a visit at the home of his mother-in-law, in what is now Mansfield, Pa., he was attacked with bilious fever and lay prostrate for nine weeks, when he yielded to the disease and bade adieu to the scenes of earth Aug 24, 1845, at the age of thirty-two years, leaving a young wife and two small children to the tender care of a merciful Father. A few days before his death he called his little five-year-old son, who was playing in the room, to his bedside and urgently entreated him never to profane the name of God. He was buried in the graveyard attached to what is now St. Clair U. P. church.

“As a citizen, his intercourse with society was upright ; as a Christian his deportment was becoming the gospel. In his last illness he afforded gratifying evidence to his friends, that he had been delivered from the power of darkness, and translated into the kingdom of God's dear Son.

“The affliction which terminated his earthly career was of nine weeks' continuance, during which time his sufferings were often excruciating, yet they were endured with the utmost patience and resignation. To counterbalance the pain and prostration of the outward man the inward man was renewed day by day, and he was blessed with that to which comparatively few attain—‘the full assurance of hope.’ Again and again did he—not in a spirit of pride and self-confidence, but in humble reliance upon a finished work of redemption—declare himself

'ready to depart and be with Christ Jesus'; and when at length he was summoned to enter upon an unseen world, he departed full of hope and peace, leaving behind him the strong attestation of a dying man, to the power of the gospel to sustain the soul amid all the solemn realities of a dissolving nature, and an opening eternity.

"In his death the church has lost a worthy member, and an energetic officer; society, a useful citizen, and the partner of his bosom an invaluable friend. But let the church bow submissively to the removal of a pillar from the earthly to a heavenly temple; and the bereaved wife and mother look to Him who has promised to be the 'widow's stay and the orphan's help,' for the protection and support of herself and fatherless children."

After almost three years' widowhood, in the spring of 1848, Mrs. McGinness married as her second husband, Henry Cowan, and with him and her two boys removed to the Cowan farm in Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., where she remained until her death, which occurred in February, 1880. She was buried in the graveyard attached to the Union U. P. church.

John and Hannah (Cabbage) McGinness had five children born to them, three of whom—two daughters and one son—died in infancy. Two sons grew to maturity, viz.: William K. and George.

I. WILLIAM KERR MCGINNESS was born March 19, 1840, in Birmingham borough—now South Side, Pittsburgh—and here remained until the death of his father, in the year 1845, when with his widowed mother and brother George, he was taken to the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Ewing, at Campbell's Run, (now Mansfield,) Allegheny county, Pa., and here he remained about one year, removing thence to the Logan farm, in the northwest part of Robinson township—Mrs. McGinness keeping house for her mother-in-law, Mrs. Logan. Here he remained until 1847, when he returned to the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Ewing.

During the early spring of 1848 his mother married her second husband, and removed with her two boys to her new home in Robinson township. Here young William spent the greater part of his boyhood days, attending school during the winter months at Ewing, Hall, and Cowan schools ; and in the summer working with his step-father on the farm.

When about fifteen years of age he resolved to leave home and seek his fortune elsewhere ; consequently from this point his path diverged from the parental roof, and his success in life was dependent, mainly, upon his own exertions. In speaking of the beginning of his career and of his military life, Mr. McGinness says :

“ Having formed a friendship while at school with a young man named Clark, who had relatives living in southern Ohio, where he had spent about a year, I was induced to leave home to seek a livelihood for myself. After presenting my prospects to mother in glowing terms, I succeeded in obtaining her permission to embark on the voyage of life ; and, in company with young Clark, left Pittsburgh in October, 1855. After paying my passage on a steamboat to Ripley, Ohio, I had but fifty cents left to make the trip. We had a very pleasant trip down the Ohio river, arriving, in due time, at the home of young Clark's aunts, in Adams county, Ohio—about twenty miles distant from the river. During the evening of the day I arrived at the Clark home, I began to realize that the novelty and excitement of the adventure were passing away ; I took a walk over the farm, and, for the first time in my life, felt that, truly, I was penniless and a ‘stranger in a strange land.’ I would have then gladly exchanged my lonely condition to the presence of my mother, which would have brought delight to my desponding heart.

“I found in young Clark a steadfast friend, and his maiden aunts very pleasant and cordial. In a few days the burden of melancholy passed away. The desire uppermost in my heart at this time was for employment. I secured from the Misses Clark a few days’ work on the farm ; but about the time I had fairly commenced work, I was taken sick and lay prostrated by a long and severe attack of typhoid fever, which confined me to the house until the first of the following March. During this spell of sickness, the greatest kindness was shown me by the Clark ladies, while my young friend cared for me night and day without a murmur. I always felt that his watchful care over me was instrumental in saving my life.

“From the time of my recovery until October, 1861, I was engaged at farm work in the summer, and in the winter at making rails and chopping cord-wood, with the exception of two winters, during which I attended the district school three months each winter, working mornings, evenings and Saturdays for my boarding. During these six years I visited my home in Pennsylvania twice, remaining but a few days each visit. I became very much attached to Ohio and its people ; acquaintances formed there were most pleasant and lasting.

“In the winter of 1860 and ’61, while I was living with a farmer, working his farm on the shares in the summer, and in the winter attending school, the dark clouds of secession began to hover over our fair country, and a call was made, in April, 1861, after the fall of Fort Sumpter, for volunteers to serve for three months. My little interest in the crops—all I possessed in the world—and the influence of my employer, deterred me from enlisting in Captain Patterson’s company, which was then being raised in the neighborhood, to help form the 24th Ohio regiment. I continued to look after my spring crops, but with anxious thought for the welfare of our nation's cause and principles. We were very busy with our harvest work when the news was received of the disastrous defeat of our forces at the first Bull Run battle, July 16-19, 1861. It was only by strong will power that I was prevented from abandoning my work and offering my services to the government. In a short time, however, the climax came when word was received of the account of the cold-blooded murder, by the rebels, of Col. Stone, a union officer, at Ball's Bluff, Va. My last day's work on a farm ended, and I gave up my 'all,' and enlisted as a private soldier, Nov. 1, 1861, in Capt. John T. Wilson's company, then being formed of neighboring boys. This company occupied the position of Company E in the line, and formed a part of the 70th regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry. We went into camp at West Union, the county seat of Adams county, Ohio, and about the first of February, 1862, left the State for Paducah, Kentucky. Embarking thence, on the 9th day of March, on one of a fleet of sixty boats, we started up the Tennessee river, and landed at Pittsburgh Landing.

"The first battle in which I was engaged was at Shiloh, April 6-7, 1862, and the last, the charge on Fort McCalister, Dec. 13, 1864. In a small pass-book I find the following memorandum, made in the evening after storming the fort: 'Leaving King's Bridge, on the Ogeechee river, in Georgia, we marched twelve miles to Fort McCalister; formed line of battle in view of the fort with considerable difficulty, much skirmishing, and heavy cannonading from the enemy's heavy mounted guns in the fort. While occupying this very uncomfortable position, orders were received from General Sherman to storm the fort at all hazards. At 5 P. M. the bugle sounded "forward." The line pushed steadily on, sanguine of success, although amidst the rattling of musketry, the showers of leaden hail which fell thick and fast, the booming of cannon, and the bursting of shells and torpedoes. Cheer after cheer from the quickly advancing and unbroken line, seemed to rise above all, until, in a very short time, victory was ours, and the old "starry banner" gently wafted its folds over Fort McCalister. The eternal destiny of many braves was sealed during these moments.'

"During the war I was engaged in eighteen distinct battles, aside from the numerous skirmishes and sieges from Chattanooga to Atlanta, lasting from May until September, 1864. I accompanied the army in Sherman's famous 'march to the sea,' and then through the Carolinas to Washington City, passing, with others of my comrades, in the second day's grand review—an event not only memorable in the nation's history, but in the history of each victorious returning soldier. From Washington City I accompanied my regiment to Little Rock, Arkansas, where, on the 14th day of August, 1865, I was discharged, and was finally mustered out of the service of my country at Camp Dennison, Ohio, Aug. 26, 1865, after a period of three years and ten months."

After the war, Mr. McGinness located in Allegheny, Pa., and in February, 1866, engaged in the machine business as an equal partner in the firm of Fisher, Graham & Co., on Marion avenue, Allegheny. The business, proving unsuccessful, was abandoned in the early spring of 1869. He then engaged with the firm of Anderson Bros., engine builders and founders, March 12, 1869, as book-keeper, which position he held for twelve years—until Feb. 1, 1881—when he embarked in the steam-heating business, as an equal partner, under the firm name of McGinness, Smith & Co., Steam Heating Engineers, Water street, Pittsburgh, in which business he at present writing continues.

He was married Oct. 29, 1868, by Rev. David MacDill, to Harriet E. McCreight—daughter of Joseph McCreight, of Adams county, Ohio—who was born Sept. 16, 1844. After several changes of residence in Allegheny City, Mr. McGinness and family located on Perrysville avenue, where he had purchased a property, and on which he erected his present residence.

When about twenty-one years of age, Mr. McGinness united with the U. P. church at Cherry Fork, Adams county, Ohio, under the pastorate of Rev. David MacDill, D. D., and after locating in Allegheny, transferred his membership to the Fifth U. P. church, Allegheny, now under the pastoral care of Rev. James Witherspoon, D.D. He has been a worthy and efficient member of the session of that congregation for more than twenty-two years, having been elected a ruling elder Oct. 6, 1869, and ordained as such on the 29th day of the same month, continuing to serve in that capacity up to the present time.

William and Harriet (McCreight) McGinness had five children, all born in Allegheny City, as follows :

1. ELLA MAUD, born Oct. 26, 1869.
2. JOSEPH ELMER, born Sept. 24, 1872.
3. HANNAH OLA, born Oct. 15, 1877 ; died Nov. 1, 1878.
4. EDNA BELLE, born June 6, 1883.
5. WILLIAM SCOTT, born June 20, 1887.

II. GEORGE EDWARD MCGINNESS was born Dec. —, 1841, in Birmingham borough—now South Side, Pittsburgh—but spent his youthful days mostly in Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., where he attended the Cowan school for a number of years.

Being bereft, when but a child, of the guidance and assistance of a father, his welfare in life became one of dependence upon his own efforts. His ambition was to enter the Christian ministry, and, not having sufficient means to obtain the necessary education preparatory to engaging in that noble work, he resolved to improve every opportunity to fit himself for his calling. He accordingly attended school during the winter months, and worked on a farm during the summer. Being a great reader and very fond of study, and with his cherished object in view, his spare moments were employed in the pursuit of his studies.

He attended Mansfield Academy two winters, qualifying himself for a teacher, after which, in the year 1859, he went to visit his brother William in Adams county, Ohio. While there he succeeded in securing a position as teacher in a district school, which he taught successfully until the war broke out.

When the call for troops was made in the autumn of '61, he gave up his school and responded by enlisting in Company E, 70th Ohio Volunteer Infantry. After having spent a few weeks in preparatory drilling in Ohio, the regiment, with others, was taken to Pittsburgh Landing, on the Tennessee river. He was engaged in the battle of Shiloh, April 6-7, 1862, and from the exposure was taken sick and was removed to his home in Ohio, where his promising life terminated June 21, 1862, at the early age of 21 years. His remains were interred in St. Clair U. P. graveyard.

The epitaph on the stone which marks his last resting-place, is a worthy tribute to his memory: "He, like many others, for the love of liberty, and to put down rebellion, offered himself upon the altar of his country."

No. 4.

JAMES MCGINNESS, the youngest son of James and Mary (Scott) McGinness, was born March 1, 1815, on the Logan farm in Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa. In the fall of 1817, after the death of his father, he was taken, with the rest of the family, to the Scott homestead at Campbell's Run, where he remained until his mother's second marriage, April 14, 1823, when he returned to the Logan farm, and here he spent six years of his youthful life, attending school with his brothers in the little log school house of the township.

When about fourteen years of age—May 17, 1829—he went to learn the trade of a blacksmith with John Armstrong, of Sharon, Moon township, Allegheny county, Pa. He served four years as an apprentice, after which he followed his trade for a livelihood until 1837, when he engaged in steamboating from Pittsburgh to St. Louis, continuing in this employment until Oct. 8, 1839, when he removed to Lawrenceburg, Dearborn county, Indiana, where he again engaged in blacksmithing.

Mr. McGinness was married Aug. 19, 1841, by Rev. Albert J. Cotton, of the M. E. church, to Eliza Mericle, who was born in Waterford, N. Y., Jan. 1, 1819, and removed with her parents to the state of Indiana in the year 1837.

After marriage they located in Guilford, Dearborn county, Ind., where they remained for a number of years, removing thence to Lawrenceburg, same county, Aug. 27, 1857, but in the meantime residing for a brief period near Westport, Decatur county. From Lawrenceburg they removed to Morris, Ripley county, Ind., thence to Indianapolis, Marion county, where they now reside.

In the year 1850 Mr. McGinness united with the Methodist Episcopal church, with which body he and wife continue to worship.

Since the year 1857 he has been employed by the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago Railroad Company—as blacksmith until Jan. 15, 1887, when, on account of infirmity, he was obliged to discontinue working at his trade, and was given a position as flagman by the same company, which position he now holds.

James and Eliza (Mericle) McGinness had six sons, viz.: William, Edgar, James W., Ralph E., John E., and Frank.

I. WILLIAM MCGINNESS was born June 19, 1842, in Guilford, Dearborn county, Ind., and here spent his boyhood days, receiving the greater part of his education in the schools of his native county. He began his career as a railroad man, in August, 1858, when he was employed by the Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago Railroad Company, continuing in its employ until the war broke out. In the month of April, 1861, he responded to the call for troops, and was assigned to Company D., 7th Indiana regiment. Having served his time, he was honorably discharged from the army, after which he was again employed by the railroad company, and continued in this employment until 1884, when he engaged in the lumber business. At present writing he is proprietor of the South Side planing mill at Indianapolis, Ind. No. 5.

ELIZABETH MCGINNESS, the only daughter of James and Mary (Scott) McGinness, was born March 14, 1817, on the Logan farm, in Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa. After the death of her father, which occurred when Elizabeth was about four months old, she was taken, with the rest of the family, to the home of her grandfather, Samuel Scott, whose farm was adjacent to the Logan farm. Here her early years were spent. When she was about six years of age, her mother, having married Joseph Logan, returned to the Logan farm. Here Elizabeth spent her girlhood and early womanhood. She attended school in a little log school house near Union church.

She was married at her home in Robinson township, Sept. 5, 1843, by Rev. James H. Buchanan, then pastor of the Birmingham A. R. church, to William Neely, of Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa. They first went to housekeeping on Boyd's Hill, Pittsburgh, Pa., where they remained about eight years—until 1851, when they removed to Duquesne borough, (now Eighth ward, Allegheny, Pa.)

In the spring of 1852 Mrs. Neely and family removed to Samuel Scott's farm in Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., and here remained until the fall of that same year, when they returned to Allegheny City. After several changes of residence in the Third ward, Allegheny, where they lived for many years—with the exception of a short time in which they resided on Federal street, Fourth ward—they removed to Jackson street, Second ward, where they purchased a property. Here they resided for a number of years.

Mrs. Neely died at her home on Jackson street, Feb. 21, 1882, having contracted a severe cold which developed into pneumonia. She was buried in Uniondale cemetery, Allegheny, where a granite tablet, properly inscribed, marks her last resting-place.

In early womanhood she united with what is now Union U. P. church, during the pastorate of Rev. John Ekin, and after marriage transferred to the First A. R. (now Second U. P.) church of Pittsburgh, and finally to what is now the First U. P. church, Allegheny, continuing in its communion until the Master called her to "come up higher."

"Around her loved and honored grave,
 The severed 'household band' may come,
 And seem to hear those blessed tones
 That made the music of their home.
 The faded form, the silent shroud,
 These, these were all they gave the tomb;
 She watches o'er them, while she wears
 The freshness of immortal bloom."

Mr. Neely was engaged in brick-making in Pittsburgh for a number of years, but, in 1852, went to the newly discovered gold fields in California. He continued to reside in that state until the spring of 1889, when he returned to Pittsburgh with his son William, who went to visit him at San Buenaventura, Ventura county. He now resides with his daughters on Atwell street, Pittsburgh.

William and Elizabeth (McGinness) Neely had four children born to them, viz., Mary A., William, Georgetta and Sarah E.

I. MARY A. NEELEY was born Aug. 11, 1844, on Boyd's Hill, Pittsburgh, Pa., and here spent her childhood days, removing with her parents to Allegheny in girlhood. She attended school for a time in the Eighth ward, Pittsburgh, and afterward in the Third ward, Allegheny. After the death of her mother she and her two sisters remained at their home on Jackson street, Allegheny, for a brief period, after which, in April, 1884, they removed to East End, Pittsburgh, and resided about four years at the home of their brother William, on Lake street, East Liberty. From there they removed, in January, 1888, to Atwell street, where they had purchased a property and on which they had erected their present residence. In girlhood Mary united with the First United Presbyterian church of Allegheny, during the pastorate of Rev. John T. Pressly, D. D., continuing in its membership until shortly after her removal to East Liberty, when she transferred her membership to the Sixth U. P. church of Pittsburgh, now under the pastoral care of Rev. Robert M. Russell. She has been for a number of years employed by Hostetter & Co., Water street, Pittsburgh, as fore-woman in the binding department.

II. WILLIAM J. NEELEY was born Dec. 6, 1847, on Boyd's Hill, Pittsburgh, Pa., but spent the greater part of his youth and early manhood in Allegheny, Pa. He received his early education in the Third ward public schools, Allegheny, and afterward attended the Iron City Business College, Pittsburgh.

Early in life, in the year 1859, he secured a position in the dry goods store of George R. White & Co., remaining in their employ about four years, after which he obtained a clerkship in the office of J. W. Arrott, insurance agent, and continued in his employ about two years. He then secured a position as assistant book-keeper for Mair & Davison, and continued with this firm until the year 1867, when he was employed as book-keeper for Bailey, Fariell & Co., manufacturers and dealers in plumbers' supplies, continuing in that capacity until the spring of 1889, when he gave up his position and went to visit his father in San Buenaventura, Cal.

On his return in May, 1889, he entered into business with the Standard Manufacturing Co., in the capacity of cashier and general financial manager, and so continues.

Mr. Neely was married to Rebecca E. Tannehill, who was born near Hickory, Washington county, Pa., June 18, 1847. She was educated at Mansfield and Oakdale academies, after which she entered the teachers' profession. They remained at the home of Mr. Neely's mother, in Allegheny, for a short time after marriage, removing thence to East Liberty, Pittsburgh. After several changes of residence in the East End they located on Lake street, where Mr. Neely had purchased a property and on it erected his present residence. Mr. and Mrs. Neely and three children, William, Frank and Mary, are members of the Sixth U. P. church, Pittsburgh, where Mr. Neely takes an active part in the Sabbath school work.

After completing the course as taught by the public schools, she attended the Curry Institute, Pittsburgh, then under the supervision of Robert Curry, A. M., preparatory to engaging in teaching. She taught successfully for a number of years in the Third ward, Allegheny, being engaged first in the North avenue building and removing to Chestnut street in 1871—the time of the erection of the new building at that place. When about fifteen years of age she united with the First U. P. church of Allegheny, and from there transferred to the Sixth U. P. church of Pittsburgh, where she is now a communicant, residing with her sisters on Atwell street, East End.

After taking the necessary course she received a permanent certificate, and entered upon her chosen work. She taught successfully in the Second ward, (Irwin avenue,) Allegheny, for a number of years, until September, 1885, when she secured a position in the Lincoln school, Pittsburgh, where she has, since that time, been engaged. She was received into the First U. P. church of Allegheny, on profession of her faith, Feb. 1, 1866, during the pastorate of Rev. John T. Pressley, D. D., transferring her membership to the Sixth U. P. church, Pittsburgh, subsequent to her removal to the East End, where she is at present located.

FAMILY OF JOHN MCGINNESS,

OF CLINTON, ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PA.

JOHAN MCGINNESS, the second son of William and Martha (Wilson) McGinness, was born in the year 1787 in Staunton, Augusta county, Va., and here spent his early years, removing with his parents, in boyhood, to Allegheny county, Pa., and thence to what is now Shenango township, Crawford county, Pa. He received a common school education, such as the schools of those days afforded, and followed farming for a livelihood.

In early manhood he left Crawford county and returned to Allegheny county, locating near Cavett's Mills. He engaged in working the farm of Mr. Cavett, of Cavett's grist and saw mill, on the north branch of Montour's run. He was married, in the year 1810, to Margaret, daughter of P. and Mary Porter Cavett. They continued to reside at Cavett's Mills until after the birth of three children, when they removed to a farm about one mile from Clinton, Findlay township, Allegheny county, Pa., Mr. McGinness having purchased the same from one John Wheeler, in the year 1816. A few years after, he erected on said farm a frame house, in which he resided during the remainder of his life.

His wife Margaret died Aug. 23, 1849, and was buried in Clinton cemetery. In the year 1853 Mr. McGinness married as his second wife, Catherine Gauntz, a native of Mexico, but a resident of the vicinity of Clinton.

Mr. McGinness was elected elder in the Associate (now U. P.) church of Clinton in the year 1823, during the pastorate of Rev. William Wilson, and continued to serve as such until his death, which occurred June 20, 1863, at the age of 76 years. He was buried in Clinton cemetery. His wife Catherine survived him several years, and died Sept —, 1879. She, also, was buried in Clinton cemetery.

The following memorial was written by John McGinness to his children, and dated June 13, 1858:

*“Dear Children:—*This memorial is for you, that you may remember your father when he has gone to rest. I have been very earnest for you at the ‘Throne of Grace.’ The salvation of your souls has been very near to my heart. I have engaged in solemn covenant duty, and given you up to God by name. I hope God has accepted the dedication. Now, dear children, as the vows of God are upon you, strive to make your calling and election sure. Dear children, God has given you children—set before them a godly example—a godly life makes a happy death. It grieves me when I think how carelessly I spent my early life. It is of God’s mercy that he has spared an incumberer of his ground so long. I bless God that he ever brought me into the pale of the visible church. I have engaged in many sweet communion Sabbaths, and hope, through the merits of Jesus Christ, to spend an eternal Sabbath with God in heaven. There are many of God’s dear saints whose names are dear to me, but the name of Jesus is much dearer. Now, my dear wife and children, I commend you to God in the hope that I shall meet you in heaven, where I hope to rest. Come death when it will, I hope to say, ‘Even so, come, Lord Jesus,’ ‘into Thy hands I commit my spirit.’

“JOHN MCGINNESS,

“In the 71st year of my age.”

John and Margaret (Cavett) McGinness had seven children born to them, viz: William, Mary, Samuel, James, Jane, Elizabeth and Margaret.

Sketch No. 1.

WILLIAM MCGINNESS was born about the year 1811 at Cavett's Mills, Allegheny county, Pa., and was but a child when his parents removed to a farm near Clinton, Pa., where he spent his boyhood days, receiving his education in the schools of the township.

He was married to Sarah A. Grienstack, but the date of marriage has not been ascertained. He removed to Tennessee about the year 1852, where he died, leaving sons and daughters. All trace of his family has been lost.

No. 2.

MARY MCGINNESS was born about the year 1812, at Cavett's Mills, Allegheny county, Pa., but spent her girlhood days on the homestead farm near Clinton, where she now resides with her widowed sister, Margaret Wilson. She is unmarried.

No. 3.

SAMUEL MCGINNESS was born Sept. 9, 1814, at Cavett's Mills, but spent his boyhood days on the homestead farm near Clinton, Pa., receiving his education in the schools of the vicinity of his home.

He learned the trade of boiler-maker, but the constant noise of that occupation being hurtful to him, he, with his brothers, engaged in the lumber business, at which he continued for about three years. He then went back to the old homestead to manage and work the farm—his father having retired from active life.

He was married Jan. —, 1836, by Rev. Carr, to Isabelle Reed, of Pittsburgh, Pa. After marriage they resided near the homestead farm—Mr. McGinness continuing to work the same—until 1842, when they removed to Indiana county, Pa., where they had purchased a farm. Here they resided about six years, when they removed to Allegheny City, Pa., remaining here about five years—until March 12, 1853, when they bade adieu to parents and home, and with a party of friends and their families, started for California, going to St. Joseph, Mo., by water, and thence across the plains with ox teams as a means of transportation.

Before leaving home a company was organized by Rev. Thompson, who drew up a constitution and by-laws which all signed, agreeing to take turns in guarding the train and doing sentinel duty; but during the journey some of the younger members of the company grew restive, and were disrespectful to their elders and uncontrollable in their actions. When they reached the Platte river, Mrs. Thompson, the minister's wife, died and was there buried by Mr. McGinness and a man named McKine.

Great difficulty was experienced in fording the Platte river. It required the assistance of all the men and animals to get the wagons across, one by one—resting them on the sand-bar in the middle of the river. When the last wagon—in it a delicate woman named French and her children—was on the sand-bar, the fractious element refused to assist in getting the wagon off, and the family was left, in great terror, on the bar all night. The next morning they received assistance from a strange company near by, and succeeded in getting the wagon across.

Being disgusted with such heartless conduct on the part of some of the company, Mr. McGinness, the French family, and a family named Brown, parted from the train, which took the Oregon road, and proceeded on their way to California. When they reached Great Salt Lake Mr. McGinness was detained three weeks on account of sickness in his family. During his stay here he had quite an interesting interview with Brigham Young, who strongly advised him to become a Mormon.

After his family recovered Mr. McGinness joined company with a Southern family named Willson, and continued on the journey. Finally, after having endured great hardships and being subject to the dangers of a long and perilous journey in those days of wagon-travel, they reached Hangtown, now Placerville, El Dorado county, Cal., Oct. 10, 1853, where they located.

Mr. McGinness was engaged for many years in the mines with varying success. He purchased a property in Placerville, on which he now resides. He also has one hundred and sixty acres in the pine forests, about thirty miles from Placerville.

About the year 1840 Mr. McGinness united with the Associate (now U. P.) church at Clinton, Rev. William Wilson pastor, and afterwards connected with the Presbyterian church at Placerville, Cal., with which body he now worships.

His wife, Isabelle, died Jan. 10, 1889, aged 75 years. She was buried in Union cemetery, Placerville, Cal.

Samuel and Isabelle (Reed) McGinness had born to them eight children, only four of whom grew to maturity—the others having died from scarlet fever during the year 1843. William and John died and were buried at the same time. Franklin died a month after, and James died six months later. Thus, in a few short months, these parents were made childless. Their family record is as follows:

IV. JAMES HARRY MCGINNESS, born in Indiana county, Pa., April 8, 1843, and died that same year.

V. MARGARET MCGINNESS was born Oct. 29, 1845, in Indiana county, Pa. When she was about three years of age her parents removed to Allegheny, Pa., where she spent about six years of her early life, removing thence, in girlhood, to Placerville, Cal., where she received her education in the public schools and at C. B. Conklin's Academy. She was married, Feb. 22, 1870, to W. H. Brown, of Shingle Springs, Cal., who has served twice as sheriff of El Dorado county, Cal., and twice as state senator from the same county. He also served one term as United States Surveyor General for the state, and is at present one of the State Harbor Commissioners, located in San Francisco, Cal., where he and wife now reside. Two children were born to them, both now deceased.

VI. JOHN REED MCGINNESS was born Oct. 24, 1849, in Allegheny City, Pa., and removed with his parents to Placerville in the year 1853. Here he spent his boyhood days, receiving his education in the public schools and Conklin's Academy, of Placerville; Brayton's College, Oakland, and Heald's College, San Francisco. He has had charge of several mercantile houses, and was, for a time, clerk in the U. S. Surveyor General's office. At present writing he is head clerk in the State Surveyor's office, located in Sacramento, Cal. He was married, in the year 1882, to Catherine Beauchamp, of San Francisco. One son has blessed their union.

VII. SAMUEL HENRY MCGINNESS was born June 6, 1852, in Allegheny City, Pa., and was but an infant when his parents crossed the plains to California. He spent his boyhood days in Placerville, receiving his primary education in the public schools of that place, after which he attended Conklin's Academy and Heald's College, San Francisco. He was married, March 20, 1877, to Hattie J. Graham. Mr. McGinness has been for the past eighteen years in the wholesale grain and flour business at Shingle Springs, Cal., where he and wife at present reside. No children.

VIII. ISABELLE MCGINNESS was born Jan. 23, 1855, in Placerville, Cal., where she has always resided. She was educated in the public schools and at Conklin's Academy, and also received a musical education. She is at present writing an invalid, rendered so from catarrh in the head, from which she has suffered many years.

FAMILY OF MARTHA (McGINNESS) COTTON,

OF CRAWFORD COUNTY, PA.

MARTHA McGINNESS, the eldest daughter of William and Martha (Wilson) McGinness, was born Dec. 6, 1791, in Staunton, Augusta county, Va., and there spent several years of her early life. In girlhood she removed with her parents to Allegheny county, Pa., and thence to a farm in Shenango township, Crawford county, Pa., where she spent the greater part of her life. She received an education such as the schools of those days afforded.

She was married, in the year 1810, at the age of nineteen, to Captain Robert Cotton,* who was born in Washington county, Pa., Aug. 2, 1787, and in the year 1797 removed with his parents to a farm four miles west of Meadville, on Vanhorn's run, in what is now Crawford county, Pa. A few years after marriage, in the year 1817, they purchased the McGinness homestead in Crawford

*Robert Cotton was a son of Colonel John Cotton, who fought through the revolutionary war under General Washington; and a descendent of John Cotton, the first Puritan minister in New England. In Bancroft's History of the United States we find the following: "In 1633, during the long summer voyage of the two hundred passengers who freighted the Griffin, three sermons a day beguiled their weariness. . . . Then came the most revered spiritual teachers of two commonwealths: the acute and subtle John Cotton, the son of a Puritan lawyer; eminent at Cambridge as a scholar; quick in the nice perceptions of distinctions, and pliant in dialects; in manner, persuasive rather than commanding; . . . deeply devout by nature, as well as habits from childhood; hating heresy, and still precipitately eager to prevent evil actions by suppressing ill opinions, yet verging toward a progress in truth and in religious freedom; an avowed enemy to democracy, which he feared as the blind despotism of animal instincts in the multitude, yet opposing hereditary power in all its forms; desiring a government of moral opinion, according to the laws of universal equity, and claiming the ultimate resolution for the whole body of the people." Such was the ancestral relative of Robert Cotton.

According to Lossing's Pictorial Field Book of the Revolution, "the Peninsula of Shawmut, on the coast of Massachusetts Bay, was called by the English Tri-mountain, and afterwards changed to Boston as a compliment to Rev. John Cotton, who emigrated from Boston, Lincolnshire, England."

county, [see sketch of William McGinness, Sr.] where they continued to reside during the remainder of their lives, Mr. Cotton being engaged in farming.

In early life Martha McGinness became a member of the Covenanter church, and afterwards connected with the Methodist Episcopal church, of which body she remained a consistent member until her death. Mr. Cotton was in the communion of the Presbyterian church for many years, and also transferred his membership to the M. E. church.

Mrs. Cotton died on the homestead farm Nov. 20, 1845. Her husband Robert Cotton survived her a few years, and died May 21, 1848. Both were buried in Espyville cemetery, Crawford county, Pa., where marble tablets, properly inscribed, mark the place of their interment.

“ Call not back the dear departed,
Anchored safe where storms are o'er ;
On the border land we left them,
Soon to meet and part no more.
Far beyond this world of changes,
Far beyond this world of care,
We shall find our missing loved ones,
In our Father's mansion fair.”

Robert and Martha (McGinness) Cotton had four children born to them, viz : Margaret, Eliza, William and John V.

No. 2.

ELIZA COTTON, the second daughter of Robert and Martha (McGinness) Cotton, was born Nov. 16, 1815, in Shenango township, Crawford county, Pa. Her early life was spent on the homestead farm, and her education received in the schools of that vicinity.

She was married at Evansburg, Crawford county, Pa., Aug. 23, 1835, by Rev. J. R. Findley, to John W. Murray, who was born Sept. 10, 1814, in Baltimore, Cumberland county, Maryland, and was a tailor by trade.

They were located at Andover, Ashtabula county, Ohio, for a few years, until after the birth of two children, when they removed to Jamestown, Mercer county, Pa., where they remained but a short time, removing thence to Gustavus, Trumbull county, Ohio. Here they resided for a number of years, after which they removed to New Castle, Lawrence county, Pa., where Mrs. Murray died March 12, 1884. Her husband survives her, and is located in Columbiana county, Ohio.

John and Eliza (Cotton) Murray had five children born to them, viz.: Martha E., Robert W., Mary M., Ella A., and John W.

I. MARTHA E. MURRAY was born July 18, 1837, in Andover, Ashtabula county, Ohio, and was but a child when her parents removed to Jamestown, Pa. Her girlhood days were spent mostly in Gustavus, Ohio, where she received a good education, removing thence, with her parents, to New Castle, Pa.

She was married at the latter place, Oct. 31, 1860, by Rev. Elliot E. Swift, of Allegheny, Pa., to James R. Percival, who was born in Youngstown, Ohio, June 14, 1837. Mr. and Mrs. Percival were located in New Lisbon, Columbiana county, Ohio, for more than twenty years, after which, about the year 1888, they removed to Leetonia, same county, where Mr. Percival had purchased the "Valley House." He was conducting that hotel at the time of his death, which occurred at his home Feb. 6, 1890. His remains were taken to New Lisbon for interment.

The following extract from a sketch of the life of Major J. R. Percival, was taken from a New Lisbon paper :

"At the breaking out of the war of the rebellion, when President Lincoln issued a call for seventy-five thousand men to serve for three months to put down the rebellion, he was among the first in Youngstown to enlist in the 19th O. V. I., and his record as a soldier was as enviable as that of any of Ohio's sons who wore the blue. He served with distinction to the end of the three months service. At the close of his first term of enlistment he re-enlisted in the same regiment, and was commissioned first lieutenant for the remainder of the war. He was afterwards made captain of the company, and for brave and meritorious conduct on the battle fields of Chickamauga and Stone River, was promoted to major of the regiment. In his years in camp and field, on the march and in the fierce crash of battle, and in every crucible in which Major Percival was tried, he was the true, unselfish friend, the staunch comrade and unflinching soldier. As private, lieutenant, captain and later as major of the regiment, he was ever faithful to his trust, and in the entire command he had not one enemy. He was held in such high esteem by his superior officers that he was requested by them to enlist in the regular army, in which he was offered a high rank, but he declined. At the close of the war he laid aside his uniform and returned to his citizenship. In 1884 he was appointed by Governor Hoadley, Oil Inspector for this district, which office he well filled until a change in the administration. He was a man of high sense of honor; of exceptionally fine mental attainments; was unusually well read, and possessed the invaluable faculty of remembering accurately all that he read. Major J. R. Percival is gone! A truer comrade, better soldier, or more unselfish man never wore the blue, or marched under the stars and stripes. After life's hard fought battles his tent is pitched in the camp of everlasting peace."

Mrs. Percival still resides in Leetonia, and conducts the "Valley House."

James and Martha (Murray) Percival had one daughter born to them, viz.:

MARY T., born March 4, 1873, in Oil City, Pa., and married, Sept. 24, 1891, to John Morrison, only son of Harvey Morrison, Esq., of New Lisbon, Ohio. Several years after marriage, they located in Neville, Clermont county, Ohio, where Mr. Gelvin purchased, from Morgan Neville, one hundred acres of land. He was engaged in farming, carpentering, and hewing timber.

Elizabeth Gelvin died in Neville, Ohio, some time between the years 1822 and 1826, but the exact date has not been ascertained. She was buried in a neighboring burying ground, about two miles from Neville. The graveyard has long since been abandoned.

Her remains were taken to Neville for interment, and placed beside her husband in the cemetery at that place.

“ The loved of earth—how they pass away !
 Like the sunny smiles of a summer day ;
 They pass from earth, we see them fall
 As a gem drops out from a coronal—
 As blossoms torn from a healthy stem ;
 'Tis thus that we ever think of them.
 We look with tears on a vacant place,
 And sigh for the loss of a well-known face ;
 We murmur the names we loved, in vain—
 They cannot answer our call again.”

JOHN TURNER MCGINNESS, the eldest son of William and Elizabeth (Turner) McGinness, was born Sept. 4, 1821, in Washington county, Pa., but spent his boyhood days in Beaver (now Lawrence) county. He received a common school education in the schools of the vicinity of his home; was raised on a farm and has followed farming the greater part of his life.

He was married at Mount Jackson, Nov. 25, 1844, to Margaret Keddoe, who was born Feb. 19, 1824. Two years after marriage, in the spring of 1846, he and wife left their native state for the west, and, after a long and toilsome journey, arrived in Mercer county, Ill., July 26, 1846, where they located, and have since continued to reside. They endured hardships and suffered from sickness and inconveniences peculiar to pioneer times.

In speaking of his pioneer life in Illinois, Mr. McGinness says: "When we arrived in Illinois we had but fifty dollars. My wife and I both took the ague—the great drawback of the west at that time—and for six months I was unable to work, consequently by spring our money was all gone, except three dollars. I went seven miles to purchase some groceries, but was refused credit. The next week I went to another town to buy my wife a calico dress, but was again refused credit. About this time an elder of the church came around to obtain subscriptions for the support of a minister. I subscribed one dollar, not knowing when or how I might get it; but the Lord had better days in store for us. When the fever left us our health and strength returned, and success attended our efforts."

Surmounting all the difficulties which met these early settlers, Mr. McGinness has continued to prosper, and has been for many years a successful farmer and highly-respected citizen of Joy, Mercer county, Ill., where he owns a fine farm. He has held many offices of trust and honor, and was a representative from Mercer county to the Illinois Legislature of 1874-75.

In early manhood Mr. McGinness united with the Presbyterian church of Mount Jackson, and afterwards transferred to the Presbyterian church of Joy, Mercer county, Ill., in which he and family are active members—Mr. McGinness having been elected a ruling elder in 1855, has continued to serve in that capacity up to the present time.

John and Margaret (Keddoo) McGinness had nine children, all born and raised in the vicinity of Joy, Mercer county, Ill. They received a common school education at Pleasant Hill. The family record is as follows :

“ There is no death ! The flowers go down
To rise upon some fairer shore ;
And bright in Heaven’s jewelled crown
They shine forever more.”

VIII. CHARLES E. MCGINNESS, the only living son of John and Margaret (Keddoo) McGinness, was born Sept. 24, 1864, in Joy, Mercer county, Ill., and here spent his early life, receiving his primary education in the schools of the vicinity of his home.

In youth he made a public profession of his faith in Christ by uniting with the Presbyterian church of Joy, Ill., and at an early age, being impressed with a desire to enter the ministry, began preparation for that great and noble work.

At the age of thirteen, in 1877, he entered Aledo Academy, Ill.—then under the care of J. R. and J. M.

Wylie—intending a four years course, but on account of his health being somewhat impaired, he omitted the summer terms, and finished the course in the spring of 1882, when he was graduated with honor, being valedictorian of the class. After one year of post-graduate study at the same institution, he went to Lake Forest University, Ill., where he entered the freshman class in 1883. At the end of the junior year he captured the first prize for oratory—a prize of fifty dollars. He pursued his studies in Lake Forest University for three years, after which he entered the senior class of Princeton College, New Jersey, where (in Whig Hall) he again took a prize for oratory—the prize being a gold medal. He was graduated from Princeton with a class of eighty-six, in June, 1887, and in the autumn of the same year, entered Princeton Theological Seminary, from which institution he was graduated, with a class of sixty, May 6, 1890.

He was licensed by Rock River Presbytery at Morrison, Ill., in September, 1889; ordained at Schaghticoke, N. Y., by Troy Presbytery, in April, 1890, and installed assistant pastor of Olivet Presbyterian church, Lansingburg, N. Y., May 14, 1890—Rev. G. P. Tyler, D. D., being the senior pastor. By request of Rev. McGinness, the congregation granted him permission to spend the winter months of 1890-91 in New York, taking courses in philosophy and ethics in New York University—returning on alternate Sabbaths to his congregation to preach. This course requires two years' study—one of which must be spent as a resident student, and in that year he did the work of two years, except the "thesis." Having completed the "thesis," thus finishing the required course, the University granted him, June 9, 1892, the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. His present address is Lansingburg, N. Y.

Rev. McGinness was married May 4, 1892, to Miss Charlotte Lela Judson, an earnest worker in his congregation—second and youngest daughter of David and Anne Eliza (Cowee) Judson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. P. Tyler, D. D., at the home of the bride on Eighteenth street, Lansingburg.

SAMUEL KENNEDY MCGINNESS, the youngest son of William McGinness, Sr., and the eldest child of his third wife, Elizabeth Kennedy, was born Sept. 3, 1842, on the homestead farm in Mount Jackson, Beaver (now Lawrence) county, Pa., and here spent his youthful days, receiving his early education in the common schools of the village.

In the year 1859 he went as an apprentice to learn the printing trade in the office of the "Lawrence Journal," published in New Castle, Pa., and continued at this work until the war broke out, when, in response to the call for troops, he enlisted as a private in the Mount Jackson Guards, April 22, 1861.

The company, which was organized and drilled by Captain Henry T. Danforth—who had served through the Mexican war in Bragg's celebrated "Battery of Artillery"—was early mustered into service and was known on the rolls during the war, as Battery B, First Artillery, Pennsylvania Reserves, but better known as "Cooper's Battery"—J. Cooper having succeeded to the captaincy on the promotion of Captain Danforth to be lieutenant-colonel of the regiment.

Samuel McGinness was promoted to corporal Oct. 12, 1861, and to sergeant, April 1, 1864. He participated, with the battery, in all the leading battles of the "Army of the Potomac"—from Dravosville in 1861, until the second series of battles before Richmond in 1864—covering a period of three years' service. He was severely wounded at the second battle of Bull Run, Aug. 29, 1862, by a shell from the enemy's artillery, which shot away his sabre and revolver. Statistics recently published show that "Cooper's Battery" suffered a greater numerical loss than any other artillery organization in the Union Army. At the close of the war this battery was under the command of Captain William McClelland, the late Adjutant General of Pennsylvania, who was a life-long, warm, personal friend of S. K. McGinness, having been born (March 2, 1842) and raised in the vicinity of Mount Jackson. Sergeant McGinness was mustered out of service June 6, 1864, "having proved himself a brave and able officer," and returned to his home and friends at Mount Jackson.

In the year 1869 he was elected Prothonotary for Lawrence county, Pa., for a term of three years. He was married Jan. 30, 1873, to Anna M. Keepers, of New Castle, Pa. They continued to reside in New Castle until the year 1881, when they removed to Jamestown, N. D., Mr. McGinness having purchased a property there in 1879 and established a banking and real estate business in 1880.

He has held many offices of trust and honor, among them that of County Treasurer of Stutsman county, North Dakota, having been elected first in 1886 and re-elected in 1888 and 1890 successively. In the year 1889 he was nominated by the Democratic party for the office of lieutenant-governor of North Dakota, and carried his own (Stutsman) county by a handsome majority, notwithstanding the fact that the county is Republican in politics and his opponent was a citizen of Jamestown. His present address is Jamestown, Stutsman county, North Dakota.

Samuel and Anna (Keepers) McGinness had six children born to them, as follows :

I. LILLIAN MCGINNESS, born Dec. 18, 1873, in Lawrence county, Pa., and when about eight years of age removed with her parents to Jamestown, N. D. THE OLD HOMESTEAD.

“ The old homestead, a cherished spot
Where first we saw the light of day,
Where infant tottering feet were taught
The step that faltering leads the way.

The old farmhouse, what memories cling
Within its old time-honored walls,
Where childhood voices, with merry shouts
Of mirth and laughter, filled its halls.

The barn, when filled with new mown hay,
Exhaled sweet perfumes rich and rare.
The gathered harvest filled each bin,
While plenty crowned the laborers' care.

In sunshine and in summer hours,
We romped about in childish glee ;
No shadows then obscured our sky,
From care and sorrow we were free.

* * * * *

Though years have passed, since there we roamed
O'er hillsides, fields, and pastures through,
In search of spring's first sweetest flowers
To gather them so fresh and new.

* * * * *

But now how changed, the fleeting years
Have rolled in quick succession by,
And scattered our once happy band—
Some in the silent churchyard lie.

Where are the cherished forms we loved,
And voices sweet we used to hear,
The eyes that beamed with love and hope,
Where is the circle once so dear?

Ah, some have laid their garments by
And passed beyond the mystic tide,
While we who linger on the shore,
May anchor, and with Him abide.”

THE SCOTT FAMILY.

MEMORY

“ How painfully pleasing the fond recollection
Of youthful connections and innocent joy,
When blest with parental advice and affection,
Surrounded with mercies and peace from on high !
I still view the chairs of my sire and my mother,
The seats of their offspring as ranged on each hand,
And that richest of books which excelled every other—
The old family Bible that lay on the stand.”

“ Whatever has once given us pain or pleasure is remembered long and recurred to often as we pass down the journey of life. Everyone has treasured away on the sacred pages of memory, a thousand little incidents, ever to be revealed in time, to which, as to some fascinating fiction, it returns whenever a gloomy or an idle unsocial hour calls up the musing spirit and turns the mind upon the past. Life, reviewed through a mist of by-gone years, sees rather a curiously wrought fiction than a stern reality. We are surrounded by mementos of the affection of friends ; but those friends themselves are gone. We remember the counsels of wisdom, the sage instructions of experience by which our minds were formed and a direction given to the current of our thoughts and habits ; but the lips from whence they flowed have long been mute as the still valley where they lie smouldering. In one graveyard and another there are little hillocks and white stones bearing remembered names, and this is all, all that is left to us. But it is in the melancholy ruins of the past that we gather the richest stores for the future. It is there we learn how very vain are earthly hopes ; how fleeting earthly friends ; how frail even the strongest cords of affection. It is there we learn to prepare for another state of being.”

INTRODUCTION.

“What’s in a name?”

THE name Scot was applied to the ancient inhabitants of Scotia or Scotland. They were originally Irish Celts who settled in the Western Highlands of Albion. Versed writers inform us that the original Scotia or Scotland was Ireland, and the Scoti or Scots, at their first appearance in authentic history, were the people of Ireland. The Scots were a Celtic race, and their original seat in Northern Britain was in Argyle, which they acquired by conquest before the end of the 5th century, and from whence they spread themselves along the western coast, from the Firth of Clyde to the modern Ross-shire.

The name Scotland seems first to have been given to the united kingdom of the Picts and Scots, in the 10th century. It was then sometimes styled, by way of distinction, Scotia Nova, (New Scotland,) and it was a considerable time afterwards before the name of Scotland was applied to it to the exclusion of Ireland.

The first prince of the British Scots mentioned in our authentic annals, was Fergus, son of Erc, who crossed over to Britain about the year 503. His great-grandson, Conal, was king of the British Scots when Columba began the conversion of the Northern Picts. Conal was succeeded by his nephew, Aidan, who was inaugurated as sovereign by St. Columba on the Island of Iona. Aidan was a powerful prince, and more than once successfully invaded the English border.

The Scots were for a time under some sort of subjection to the English of Northumbria, but recovered their independence on the defeat and death of King Egfrid, in battle with the Picts at Nechtansmere in 685.

In the middle of the 9th century, by a revolution—the exact nature of which has never been ascertained—the Scots acquired a predominance in Northern Britain. Kenneth, son of Alpin, the lineal descendent of Fergus and Aidan, succeeded his father as king of the Scots in 836.

The Picts and Scots, each speaking a dialect of the Celtic tongue, gradually coalesced into one people, whose territory extended from the Firths of Forth and Clyde to the northern extremity of Great Britain. The crown descended to a line of princes of the family of Kenneth, whose rule gave a unity and comparative tranquility to the Scots of Britain, which those of Ireland, at no time really united under one prince, never possessed; and the good effects of which, as contrasted with the state of the sister Ireland, are experienced to the present day.

In the course of time, it became necessary to particularize families by the use of surnames or family names, as individuals were distinguished, one from another, by the use of individual or Christian names.

Surnames began to be used by the English nation about the time of William the Conqueror, in 1066, when the conquest was achieved. In some instances they are known to have been assumed before the Norman conquest. The Scotch date the use of surnames from about the same time as the English.

The practice of assuming surnames from the birth-place of the person, or from his residence, is of very high antiquity. In the early annals of Scotland we find the name Scot used as a family name. When it was changed into its present spelling, Scott, we have no means of ascertaining, though we find record of one, Michael Scott, whose traditional birth is 1190.

There is no reason to doubt the Scottish origin to which this family name, Scott, testifies—"it expresses the country of the original assumer," and represents the Scotch nation.

The ancestors of the family now under consideration have been traced back to the time of the persecutions in Scotland, and the name may be found among those of the stern Covenanters of those days.

Researches have given us, as the head of the family with which this genealogy has to deal, the name William Scott, but of his ancestral relatives we have not obtained any data.

GREAT-GREAT-GREAT-GREAT GRANDFATHER.

“ Should auld [relations] be forgot,
And never brought to mind?
Should auld [relations] be forgot,
And days of auld lang syne?”

WILLIAM SCOTT, the progenitor of the family with which this genealogy has to deal, was born in Scotland in the latter half of the seventeenth century—the exact date has not been ascertained. On account of his loyalty to the principles of the “ Church of Scotland,” and bitter opposition to Popery, he, with many other families of Covenanter sympathies, in order to enjoy peace and safety, was compelled to leave his native land and find a home elsewhere. He, accordingly, went to the north of Ireland and settled at Ballymacran—near Newtown Limavady, in the northern part of County Derry. There he laid out a deer park and salmon fishery, as he was a man of considerable wealth—which, be it remembered, must be judged by the standard of those days, not of the present time.

But few details of his life have come down to us, which is greatly to be regretted. The date of his marriage or the name of his wife has not been learned ; nor do we know when or where he died, though it is supposed that, after locating in Ballymacran, he continued to reside there during the remainder of his life, and that he also died there. We have gained knowledge of but one child—a son, Joseph—though undoubtedly there were other representatives of the family.

GREAT-GREAT-GREAT GRANDFATHER.

JOSEPH SCOTT, son of William Scott, was born in Ballymacran, County Derry, Ireland, as near as can be estimated, in the early part of the eighteenth century. He was twice married, but the names of his wives and the dates of his marriages have not been obtained. His children were, so far as has been ascertained, one daughter and five sons, viz.: Mary, William, Zaccheus, Nathan, Samuel and James.

He died in Ballymacran, Ireland, after which his children emigrated to America. Although the exact date of their arrival is not known, it was, most probably, between the years 1760 and 1770—in colonial days.

They first located in Lancaster county, Pa., and shortly after, with a number of others from the same place, removed to Western Pennsylvania and settled in what is now Allegheny county. Being among the early settlers of that county, they endured the hardships, and were subject to the dangers of pioneer times.

WILLIAM SCOTT, the eldest son of Joseph Scott, Sr., was killed in one of the Indian wars.

ZACCHEUS SCOTT settled, with his brother James, on a farm in Elizabeth township, Allegheny county, Pa. All trace of him has been lost.

NATHAN SCOTT located in New Jersey. Nothing further has been learned of him, except that he had a son, Nathan, who married a Miss Andrews; and a daughter, who married John Connell. No information or records of their families have been obtained.

- “ And parted thus they rest, who played
 Beneath the same green tree ;
Whose voices mingled as they prayed
 Around one parent knee.
- “ The same fond mother bent at night
 O'er each fair sleeping brow ;
She had each folded flower in sight—
 Where are those dreamers now ?
- “ They that with smiles lit up the hall,
 And cheered with song the hearth—
Alas ! for love, if thou wert all,
 And naught beyond, O earth ! ”

A separate sketch is given of Mary and James, with particular mention of Samuel and his descendants, with whom the family of James McGinness, of Allegheny county, Pa., is connected, by marriage of said James McGinness with Mary, daughter of Samuel Scott.

FAMILY OF MARY (SCOTT) YOUNG,

OF ROBINSON TOWNSHIP, ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PA.

MARY SCOTT, the eldest child and only daughter of Joseph Scott, Sr., was born in County Derry, Ireland, about the year 1734, and, in early womanhood, emigrated with her brothers from her native county, to America.

She was married sometime in the 60's of the past century, to James Young, of what is now Bart township, Lancaster county, Pa. He lived on the main road leading from Philadelphia to Lancaster, where he kept an inn at which the wagoners stopped on their route. It is not known in what year Mr. Young died, but evidently it was prior to 1780. He was buried in the burying ground of one of the Seceder or Covenanter churches of Bart township. His wife, Mary, afterwards married John Morgan, and, with her eight children, came to Western Pennsylvania about the year 1780. Their first location, in what is now Allegheny county, seems to have been in the neighborhood of the land settled by the Scotts in Robinson township, and near where the fort (afterwards known as the Cowan Fort) was built by John Peter Beyl, or Bail.

Mary Scott Young, after her second marriage, was known to the succeeding generation of Youngs as "Grandmother Morgan." She died Sept. 21, 1814, aged 80 years, and was buried in the cemetery of Union A. R. church, Robinson township, her grave being marked by a stone which gives her name as "Mary Morgan."

“ Sleep on, sleep on, thou pulseless heart,
 Where jasmine stars drop golden rain;
 From every troubled thought apart,
 Forgotten every earthly pain.

“ Sleep on; thy long repose is sweet,
 Tender and cool thy grassy sod.
 O traveler! stay thy hurrying feet;
 Step softly here—‘ she rests in God.’ ”

James and Mary (Scott) Young had eight children, viz.: Letitia, Matthew, Ann, Thomas, Mary, Margaret, John and James, Jr.

JAMES YOUNG, JR., the youngest child of James and Mary (Scott) Young, died in youth.

FAMILY OF JAMES SCOTT, SR.,

OF ELIZABETH TOWNSHIP, ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PA.

JAMES SCOTT, SR., the youngest son of Joseph Scott, was born in Ballymacran, County Derry, Ireland. The exact date of his birth is not known, but, as near as can be estimated, it must have been between the years 1752 and 1755.

In youth he emigrated from Londonderry, Ireland, to America, but the exact date of his arrival is not known. When he came to Western Pennsylvania, he settled on a farm in the narrow peninsula between the Monongahela and Youghiogheny rivers—known as the “Forks of Yough” settlement—in what is now Elizabeth township, Allegheny county, Pa. This farm he afterwards patented, Nov. 9, 1789.* (Part of this farm is now owned by his grandson, Zaccheus Scott.) In the meantime, probably in the year 1781 or 1782, he had married Mary Pearson, who was born in Westmoreland county, Pa.

James Scott was among the earliest settlers of Allegheny county, and was identified with the Indian troubles of pioneer times. In one instance he and wife were driven from their farm by the Indians, and took refuge at Hannastown (then the county seat of Westmoreland county)—traveling a distance of about thirty miles, and being beset with difficulties and dangers peculiar to those days of Indian hostilities. After remaining at Hannastown for a time, in constant dread, they concluded to return home.

*The log house built by James Scott, Sr., more than a century ago, is still standing and occupied,

The morning after they left the town, the fort in which they had taken refuge was destroyed by Indians, and all the inmates, except a few persons, were killed.*

James Scott died in the year 1825, on his farm in Elizabeth township, having lived there about a half-century. Eight children were born to James and Mary (Pearson) Scott, viz.: John, (who died in 1815;) James, Zaccheus, Kennedy, (who died in 1809;) Joseph, Sarah, Margaret and Hannah. They were all born and raised in Elizabeth township, and were prominently identified with the history of that section.

GREAT-GREAT GRANDFATHER.

SAMUEL SCOTT, SR., the pioneer of the family under special consideration, was a son of Joseph Scott. He was born in the year 1751, in Ballymacran—near Newtown, Limavada—County Derry, Ireland, and in youth came with his brothers and sister to America.

Comparatively little is known as to where he first located in this country, though we hear of his being at Pequa, Lancaster county, Pa., attending a communion service of the Reformed Presbyterian church, of which he was a member; and again at a service at Conococheague, Franklin county, Pa.—being, it is supposed, located in Lancaster county. Sometime after this he purchased a team of horses, a conestoga wagon and farming implements and started for the West, going by way of Bedford Springs, Bedford county, Pa.—which place was then owned by Rev. James Renwick Wilson.

Samuel Scott was married about the year 1775 or 1776, to Elizabeth Wilson, who was born in the year 1749—a sister of Rev. J. R. Wilson. After marriage he settled on a farm at “Mingo Creek,” Washington county, Pa., which is the first place we hear of his being permanently located. There he remained for a number of years, removing about the year 1795 to a farm at Campbell’s Run, Washington county, now Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa. He was one of the pioneers of that township, enduring the trials, hardships and privations of a pioneer life. Since that time this family name has been connected with Robinson township history.

In those early days of settlement, the settlers were subject to frequent attacks by the Indians, consequently the most important matter to attract the attention of our pioneer forefathers was to defend, not only themselves, but also their wives and children, against the tomahawk of the savages. In order to afford protection, the settlers had built a block-house or fort on the McMichael farm, (afterwards known as the Cowan farm,) near Campbell's Run. As was the custom in those days the neighbors assisted each other with their work, going in companies to the different farms, and leaving their wives and children in the block-house. About sunset each day they all re-assembled at the block-house, where they often remained all night. If any of their number failed to appear at the appointed time, their friends concluded they had been massacred by the Indians.

When Samuel Scott first came to Robinson township, he rented a farm of 331 acres from John Bail, and engaged in tilling the soil. This farm he purchased, Nov. 23, 1799, for £516 specie. The deed for the same may be found recorded in Allegheny county court house, March 1, 1800, Volume 9, p. 317. This farm was part of a tract of land granted unto John Bail by patent, under the great seal of Pennsylvania, bearing the date March the nineteenth, A. D., 1789.

Having considerable means, according as wealth was estimated in those days, Mr. Scott purchased, May 4, 1805, another farm of 309 $\frac{1}{4}$ acres on Miller's run, Washington county, Pa., from Alexander Addison in consideration of \$2,474. Recorded in Washington county, Feb. 10, 1806, in Deed Book T, folio 296. "This farm is part of a larger tract of land which the king of Great Britain, by patent bearing date the fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, under the hand of John Earl of Dunmore, Lieutenant Governor of the then colony of Virginia, and the seal of the said colony, granted in fee to GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esquire, who, with Martha, his wife, by deed bearing date the first day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, conveyed the same in fee to Matthew Ritchey, Esquire, since deceased, who by his last 'will and testament,' devised the same in fee to Alexander Addison."

From the time of his removal to Campbell's Run, Mr. Scott lived in true pioneer style, in a little log cabin, until 1806, when he erected a large two story stone house, in which he lived during the remainder of his life.

Some incidents which have been related in connection with the life of Samuel Scott might here be inserted :

In the fall of 1805 a communion service, conducted by Rev. Gilmore, was held on the farm of Mr. Scott. It was attended by about fifty persons, who came a distance of from twenty to thirty miles, in wagons and on horseback. They arrived on Wednesday preceding the communion and remained until the following Monday, during which time they enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Scott and wife—such as the circumstances of frontier life would permit. As the home at that time was a small log cabin, the people could not be accommodated in the house, consequently the barn floor was covered with straw, over which was spread wagon covers, blankets, etc. Here the guests slept—Mr. Scott lodging with the company.

Thursday was kept as a fast day preparatory to the communion. On Friday, all the able-bodied men went to work, hewing and hauling logs with which to erect a communion table, seats and a tent, from which the minister addressed the audience. [This tent was located where John Scott's barn now stands.] Services were held Thursday, Saturday afternoon, Sabbath and Monday morning, after which the worshipers returned to their homes.

Samuel Scott owned a fine horse named "Coley," which was regarded as very swift and sure-footed. Some time in the year 1815, he started, on his fleet-footed horse, "Coley," on a chase to the land office at Canton or Mansfield, Ohio, to enter some land. Leaving his home in Robinson township, he journeyed through Frankfort to Yellow Creek, Jefferson county, Ohio, where he lodged the first night at the home of Hon. Thomas George, (brother of David George, who married his daughter, Nancy Scott,) who was afterwards a prominent member of the Ohio Legislature. He continued on his journey, carrying food for himself and "Coley" in his saddle-bags, and lodging at night at convenient places along the route.

This was a very perilous journey, as the country at that time was infested with hostile Indians; but despite the dangers and difficulties he encountered, he reached the land office in safety, and, being first of the numerous competitors, accordingly entered a section (640 acres) of land in the territory of Ohio—"section twenty-five of township twenty-three, in range nineteen"—twelve miles northwest of what is now Mansfield, Richland county, Ohio—on the main road leading to Sandusky.

He also entered one-half section in the same territory—distinguished as the "east half of section one, of township twenty-three, range seventeen," making in all 960 acres of land in Ohio, which in addition to his farms in western Pennsylvania, made about 1600 acres of land in his possession.

He continued to prosper until his death, which occurred at the homestead in Robinson township, Dec. 27, 1819, he being 68 years of age. His wife, Elizabeth, survived him and died Feb. 13, 1827, in the seventy-eighth year of her age. Both are buried in Union graveyard, on the Steubenville turnpike, about one-half mile from the homestead.

On the day previous to his death, Mr. Scott made his will, of which the following is a copy :

“In the name of God, Amen. I, Samuel Scot, of Robinson Township, Allegheny County, and State of Pennsylvania, ailing in my person, but, praise be to God, in the full possession of my mental powers, believe it my duty to set my house in order, as it is appointed for all men once to die, make this my last will and testament, hereby ignoring and revoking all others of previous date.

“I bequeath my soul to God through the merits of my dear Redeemer, my body to a decent interment at the discretion of my executors, in hopes of a glorious and blessed resurrection, and arrange my worldly affairs in the following order :

“My funeral expenses and my other debts owing by me at my death, I desire my executors to pay expeditiously after my interment, and my worldly property I dispose of as follows :

“First: I bequeath to my wife, Elizabeth Scot, my dwelling-house as long as she lives ; a sufficiency of wood and coals, cut and hauled home to the house ; one horse, the choice of my stable ; two of the best of my cows ; ten sheep ; all the furniture my house contains, and one-third of the small grain and one-half of the hay which grows annually on my farm. Said chattel property I authorize her to dispose of as she pleases, the grain to be cut, stored and threshed for her annually without trouble or expense.

“Secondly : I bequeath to the orphan children of my son John, now deceased, to his five daughters, Hannah, Betsey, Polly, Esther and Rachel, equal shares in the whole amount of the chattel property, coming to him from the vendues made—the one after the death of their father, the other after the death of their mother—and the yearly profit rents of the farm on Miller’s Run to Samuel when he comes to the age of twenty-one years—the aggregate amount I desire to be equally divided among them when Samuel comes of age. I desire my executors to divide honestly, that farm of land my son John occupied, into three equal parts, of which I allow them immediate possession, providing they don't claim a child's part in the chattel property I have bequeathed to their sisters; if they do claim a child's part of the chattel property reserved for their sisters, I, by these presents, authorize my executors to withhold from them claim, possession or any privilege arising to them from said shares in the above-mentioned farm, until they pay to my executors a sum of money amounting to the sum of the shares in the chattel property they claimed, and having fulfilled said condition, I bequeath to my three grandsons, Samuel Scot, Jonathan Scot, and John Scot, said freehold farm, as divided by executors, to them and to their heirs forever, free of rent.

“Thirdly: I bequeath to my daughter, Margaret, the wife of Archibald Slater, the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars, to be paid her by my executors twelve months after my decease.

“Fourthly: I bequeath to my daughter, Betsy, the wife of William Wright, the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars, to be paid her twelve months after my death.

“Fifthly: I bequeath to my daughter, Polly,* one quarter section of land in the territory of Ohio, called ‘the north-half, section twenty-five, of township twenty-three, in range nineteen,’ to her and her heirs forever, free of all rents or demands save the taxes; said property I have leased ten years from April, 1820. At the expiration of said term she shall have, by my executors, quiet and peaceable possession of said quarter section, to be enjoyed forever by her and her heirs, free of rent. I also bequeath to her eight sheep, to be fed for her free of expense.

“Sixthly: I bequeath to my daughter, Nancy, the other quarter remaining, of the above-mentioned portion of land in the territory of Ohio, being the second quarter section of a half-section, distinguished ‘the north-half, section twenty-five, of township twenty-three, in range nineteen,’ on the lines with her sister Polly’s quarter-section, to be held forever by her and her heirs free of rent.

“Seventhly: I bequeath to my son William all of that half-section of land in the territory of Ohio—adjacent to his sisters’ division—already in his possession, of which he has a conveyance, under my hand, in the presence of Andrew McCurdy, Esq., to be held and occupied forever by him and his heirs free of rent.

“Eighthly: I bequeath to my son Joseph, one hundred and fifty acres of land on the waters of Miller’s run, which he now occupies, to be held and possessed by him and his heirs forever free of rent.

“Ninthly: I bequeath to my son Samuel Scot, the one-half of my own farm. The survey of it is 310 acres, of which I bequeath to him one hundred and fifty-five acres, free of rents or demands; and during my wife’s life, he has to occupy the whole farm and discharge the conditions of my will expressed in the division which respects his mother. I bequeath to him the large still and wagon free of expense.

“Tenthly: I bequeath to my son James one-half section of land in the territory of Ohio, distinguished as ‘the east half of section one, of township twenty-three, in range seventeen,’ of which I bequeath him the full and free enjoyment of during his life, and authority to bequeath it to his children at his death, to be the property of them and their heirs forever free of rent and equally divided among them. I bequeath him one good horse; one cow; one patent plow; trees and harness for ploughing and six good sheep. If there be a second horse to spare, I allow it to him or else that Samuel will move him out.

“Lastly: The other half of my farm, after the death of my wife, I desire to be disposed to my son Samuel, providing he pays for it the sum of two thousand dollars, for which I allow him seven years to pay the money; the first seventh part of it to be paid in twelve months after the death of my wife; another seventh part to be paid next twelve months, and so, annually, until he pays in the whole of the purchase, every year one-seventh part. When the within mentioned 700 dollars are paid to my two daughters, the remainder is to be equally divided to each of the within named legatees, besides the amount of the sales of chattel property that remains unbequeathed in the within testament, and I, by these presents, authorize, nominate and appoint my three sons, William Scot, Joseph Scot, and Samuel Scot, to execute this, my last will and testament. Signed, sealed and delivered this twenty-sixth day of December, A. D., eighteen hundred and nineteen.

Samuel and Elizabeth (Wilson) Scott had nine children born to to them, viz.: John, Margaret, Elizabeth, William, Mary, Joseph, Samuel, Nancy and James. They all grew to maturity, married and had families. A separate sketch of each is given in order.

FAMILY OF JOHN SCOTT,

OF MILLER'S RUN, WASHINGTON COUNTY, PA.

JOHN SCOTT, the eldest son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Wilson) Scott, was born in the year 1777, at Mingo Creek, Washington county, Pa., and was baptized Oct. 7, 1779, at the "Forks of Yough" settlement, by Rev. John Cuthbertson, who had emigrated to America in the year 1751—having been sent by the Scottish church to minister to her followers in this country.

The following record of the baptism of John Scott, and his sister Margaret, is found in the diary of Rev. Cuthbertson :* "Oct. 7, 1779—Rode 14 miles to Sam Wilson's. Preached Heb. 12 : 14. Baptized Elizabeth to S. Wilson John, and Margaret to Samuel Scott."

John Scott spent his boyhood days on the farm at Mingo Creek, removing thence with his parents to the "Campbell's Run" farm, Allegheny county, Pa., when about eighteen years of age.

He was married, in the year 1800, to Esther Phillips, daughter of Jonathan Phillips, who had emigrated from his native county, Ireland, sometime previous to the revolutionary war, and purchased from the government four hundred acres of land in what is now Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa.

After his marriage, Mr. Scott rented a farm at Miller's Run, Washington county, Pa., adjoining the farm of his brother-in-law, John Berry, from Alexander Addison.

*This diary is now in the possession of Rev. Joseph Buchanan, of Steubenville, Ohio.

This farm is the one purchased by his father, Samuel Scott, Nov. 5, 1805. He lived on the south end of the farm, in a little log cabin, until 1809, when he removed, with his family to the north end, where he had built a hewed-log house. Here he continued to reside during the remainder of his life, being engaged in farming. This portion of the farm was afterwards willed to his three sons, Samuel, Jonathan and John, by their grandfather, Samuel Scott, Sr.

Mr. John Scott was a ruling elder in Robinson's Run Associate Reformed (now U. P.) church—Dr. John Riddell then pastor—at the time of his death, which occurred at his home at Miller's Run, Feb. 19, 1817, at the comparatively early age of forty years. His wife, Esther, died six months after, July 19, 1817. Both were buried in the little cemetery attached to Robinson's Run church.

“ They have passed away to their quiet rest,
 Earth foldeth them in her silent breast ;
 The chill winds howl, or warm rains weep
 Alike unheeded above their sleep ;
 And flowers may burst at the touch of spring,
 And green leaves rustle, and wild birds sing ;
 But it matters not to the mouldering dust,
 The green earth holdeth in faithful trust.”

John and Esther (Phillips) Scott had eight children, viz.: Hannah P., Elizabeth W., Mary, Samuel, Jonathan, Esther, John and Rachel.

Sketch No. 1.

HANNAH PHILLIPS SCOTT was born Oct. 14, 1801, at Miller's Run, Washington county, Pa., and here spent her early life. In early womanhood Hannah united with Union A. R. (now U. P.) church, and remained in its communion until her death.

Esther Verner died at her home in Robinson township, Aug. 7, 1871, and was buried in the burying-ground of Forest Grove Presbyterian church.

“ They never quite leave us, our friends who have passed Through the shadows of death to the sunlight above,
 A thousand sweet memories are holding them fast
 To the places they blessed with their presence and love.
 The work which they left, and the books which they read,
 Speak mutely, though still with an eloquence rare,
 And the songs that they sung, the dear words that they said,
 Yet linger and sigh on the desolate air.”

He received a common school education in the schools of his native county, and, when old enough, learned the trade of a carpenter, which occupation he afterwards followed, having sold his farm (inherited from his grandfather) to his uncle, John Berry.

He was married to Catherine Collins, of Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., and for a time lived at the Collins home, after which they went to housekeeping in Robinson township, and soon after the young wife died leaving an infant daughter. Mr. Scott then returned with his infant daughter, Anna, to the Collins home where he died a few years after the death of his wife. Both were members of what is now Union U. P. church, and were buried in the cemetery attached to it.

Samuel and Catherine (Collins) Scott had one daughter, Anna.

I. ANNA SCOTT was born in Robinson township, but the date of her birth has not been ascertained. Being left, at a tender age, without the care of mother or father, she was taken by her aunt, Rachel Collins, and with her spent her early life. While visiting an uncle in Kentucky, she was married to Alfred B. Alder, of the above named place. They had children, but no record of them has been obtained.

JONATHAN SCOTT, the second son of John and Esther (Phillips) Scott, was born in the year 1809, on the homestead farm in Washington county, Pa., and after the death of his parents lived for a time with his uncle, John Berry, after which he removed to the home of his grandfather, Jonathan Phillips, of Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa.

He received a common school education, such as the schools of the vicinity of his home afforded, and followed farming.

In early manhood he left his grandfather's home and went to Ohio, where he was married, but the date of marriage or the name of his wife has not been learned. He remained some years in Ohio, but in the meantime returned to Pennsylvania to settle up his business, he having sold his farm at Miller's Run to his uncle, John Berry. After this he and family went farther west, and since then all trace of him has been lost. Nothing further of the family has been learned. We cannot say with any certainty how many children were born to them, though we learn they had four sons, but of them we have not obtained any record.

“ One by one earth's ties are broken,
 As we see our love decay;
 And the hopes so fondly cherished
 Brighten but to pass away.
 One by one our hopes grow brighter,
 As we near the shining shore;
 For we know across the river
 Wait the loved ones gone before.”

A few years after his wife's death, Mr. Gribben married, as his third wife, Sarah Gibson, daughter of Robert Gibson, of Middletown, Moon township, Allegheny county, Pa. They resided in Middletown (now Coraopolis) a few years after marriage, removing thence about the year 1855 or 1856 to what is now South Side, Pittsburgh. “ The maid who binds her warrior’s sash,
 With smile that well her pains dissembles,
 The while beneath her drooping lash
 One starry tear-drop hangs and trembles;
 Though Heaven alone records the tear,
 And fame shall never know her story,
 Her heart has shed a drop as dear
 As e’er bedewed the field of glory.”

WILLIAM SCOTT, the second son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Wilson) Scott, was born at Mingo Creek, Washington county, Pa., about the year 1782, though the exact date is not known. He spent his childhood days on the farm at Mingo Creek, removing with his parents to Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., in boyhood.

When about sixteen years of age, in the summer of 1798, he left home, and for a long time his parents did not know where he was located, but finally heard from him at Cadiz, Harrison county, Ohio. Here he married Miss Nancy Grimes, whose brother at that time kept a hotel in Cadiz, known as the "Cross Keys House." They located on a farm, which Mr. Scott had purchased, about three miles north of Cadiz, and here his wife died, but the date of her death has not been ascertained. She left two children, both now dead.

In the year 1819 Mr. Scott married, as his second wife, Catherine Thompson, of Red Stone, Fayette county, Pa., who was at that time living with her brother, David, near Cadiz, Ohio. Shortly after marriage they removed to Brooke (now Hancock) county, W. Va., opposite East Liverpool, Ohio, where Mr. Scott purchased a farm.

In the year 1830 he and family removed to East Liverpool, Ohio, where he erected a steam saw-mill. In Sept., 1832, he went to Pittsburgh for machinery for the mill, stopping at the home of his nephew, Captain John Young, at Montours, Allegheny county, Pa., where he left his horse and proceeded to Pittsburgh on Captain Young's mule. Leaving the mule at "Jones' Ferry," he crossed the river to Pittsburgh to make his purchases. After the lapse of several days, as he did not return to the stable for the mule, Mr. Jones, becoming alarmed at his absence, sent for Captain Young, who, with the coroner, Ebenezer Kerr, made diligent search for about two weeks, but could find no trace of Mr. Scott. The conclusion arrived at, was that he had been murdered at, or near the "Point," Pittsburgh.

" We shall meet there many a loved one,
That was torn from our embrace;
We shall listen to their voices,
And behold them face to face."

His wife Catherine removed with her family, in November, 1844, to Richland county, Ohio, where she died Jan. —, 1848, and was buried in Rome cemetery, in the above-named county and state.

Only put off their mortality,
To claim it again when it shall be made
Holy, immortal, no more to fade.

JOSEPH SCOTT, the third son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Wilson) Scott, was born in the year 1786 at Mingo Creek, Washington county, Pa., and there spent his early life, removing with his parents, in boyhood, to what is now Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa.

He was married April 10, 1809, to Margaret McCurdy, daughter of Hugh McCurdy, who had emigrated from Ireland at an early day and purchased three hundred acres of land in Robinson township. After marriage he removed to the south end of his father's farm at Miller's Run, Washington county, Pa., where he occupied the little log cabin which had previously been occupied by his brother John. This portion of the farm, consisting of one hundred and fifty acres, was afterwards willed to him by his father, Samuel Scott.

In the autumn of 1812 Mr. Scott was cited to appear in Washington to enroll himself as a soldier—under command of General Harrison—in the war going on between Great Britain and the United States, as the following notice, which is copied from the original, will show :

“TAKE NOTICE—That you are hereby required, personally, or by sufficient substitute, to appear in Washington, properly armed and equipped for service, at the hour of 10 o'clock, A. M., on Monday, the 28th inst., to march when required. Appeals to be held at Richard Donaldson's, in the borough of Washington, on Tuesday, the 20th of October next, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

"Given under my hand this 15th day of September, 1812.

"THOMAS DONALDSON, Lieutenant.

"To Joseph Scott."

He accordingly made the necessary preparations for leaving home, his wife and two small children, Samuel and Hugh. Taking the youngest child, Hugh, who was but eight months old, from the cradle, and kissing him good bye, he picked up his knapsack and started for the war.

At the time of election for regimental officers, Thomas Donaldson was made captain, and Joseph Scott, first lieutenant. They were encamped, most of the time, at Fort Meigs, near Sandusky, Ohio.

His term of service—nine months—having expired, Mr. Scott returned to his home and family in June, 1813, not having participated in any battles.

His wife, Margaret, died June 4, 1827, aged forty-four years, and was buried in Robinson's Run A. R. churchyard. She had eight children, six sons and two daughters.

In the year 1832 he built a large barn in which church services were often held, as the nearest Covenanter church at that time was at the "Forks of Yough."

During the year 1833 he burnt brick on his own place for a dwelling, and in the year 1834 erected a fine brick house, which he occupied until his death, which occurred May 14, 1861, he being seventy-five years of age and having lived fifty-two years on the farm on which he died. He was for many years an elder in Miller's Run Reformed Presbyterian church near Venice, Washington county, Pa. He was buried in the little cemetery attached to that church.

“Ye wheels of nature, speed your course!
 Ye mortal powers decay!
 Fast as ye bring the night of death,
 Ye bring eternal day.”

His wife, Sarah, survived him and died Aug. 2, 1882, aged eighty-eight years. She was buried in Miller's Run R. P. churchyard.

On the breaking out of the rebellion, he responded to the call of his country, by enlisting on his seventeenth birthday, in Company F, 78th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, to serve three years. He served under General Grant in the campaign of western Tennessee and in the Vicksburg campaign—participating in the memorable siege of that city, after which General Pemberton, who commanded the rebel forces in Vicksburg, surrendered to General Grant on the day of the “National Jubilee”—July 4, 1863, after a long and obstinate defence, and the “stars and stripes waved in triumph on the fortifications of Vicksburg.” He accompanied the expedition under General W. T. Sherman into central Mississippi, February, 1864, reaching Meridian, the great railroad centre, by the middle of the month, and after destroying one hundred and fifty miles of railroad, and killing, wounding or capturing five hundred rebels, retraced their steps to Vicksburg. On this expedition eight thousand negroes were freed.

Mr. Scott was also with Sherman in his movements against Gen. Joseph E. Johnston—the objective point being Atlanta, the “heart of the confederacy.” Defeating Johnston at Resaca, May 16, 1864, the army followed up the retreat of the adversary, and after a series of actions—among them the battle of “Kenesaw Mountain”—drove him to Atlanta, near which city the Confederates were defeated July 22, 1864. In this battle, known as the battle of “Peach Tree Creek”—in which the lamented Gen. James B. McPherson was killed—Mr. Scott was twice wounded. In September, by a series of operations, the confederates were forced to evacuate Atlanta, and Sherman wrote, “Atlanta is ours, and fairly won.”

After the Atlanta campaign was ended, in November, 1864, Mr. Scott accompanied a force of 65,000 men, under Gen. Sherman, in the famous “march to the sea”—memorable, especially, to those who participated in it. Penetrating through Georgia, they occupied Savannah on the 21st of November, and, after resting here a short time, moved on to Hilton Head, South Carolina, thence to Columbia, reaching the latter place Feb. 17, 1865—witnessing the burning of Columbia, which city was speedily reduced to ashes, notwithstanding the efforts of Union officers to check the flames. The army then moved on to Raleigh, North Carolina, where the Confederates under Gen. Joseph E. Johnston surrendered to Gen. Sherman, April 26, 1865. After a few days' rest, the troops marched to Washington, D. C., via Richmond, Mr. Scott participating in the “grand review” of the army, May 23 and 24, and was discharged from service June 17, 1865, retiring to his family circle and friends, “secure and happy under the old flag.”

After returning home he engaged in carpentering, which occupation he followed until 1883, and since then he has been engaged in the gas-fitting business.

He was married Dec. 31, 1867, near Bloomfield, Ohio, to Lizzie Black, of Guernsey county, Ohio. After two years residence at the home of his father and father-in-law, respectively, he removed to Cambridge, Guernsey county, Ohio, where he and family now reside.

Here he spent his boyhood days, receiving his primary education in the log school-house in the vicinity of his home.

His father, desiring to educate him for the Covenanter ministry, sent him to Canonsburg Academy. After pursuing his studies there for two or three sessions he stated to his friend, John Morrow, that he had given up the idea of entering the ministry and had decided to become a lawyer. His father, upon hearing this, was greatly disappointed and immediately took him from school and put him to work on the farm, at which he continued until September, 1817, when he was married to Catherine Fitzgerald, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

After marriage, he and wife located on what is now the South Side, Pittsburgh, where they continued to reside until the spring of 1819, when they removed to a little log cabin on the farm of Isaac McMichael, in Robinson township. Here Mrs. Scott died Feb. —, 1821, and was buried in Union graveyard—the head-stone of Samuel Scott, Sr., serving as her foot-stone.

After the death of his wife Mr. Scott broke up house-keeping and, with his infant daughter Catherine, made his home with his mother in the old stone house at Campbell's Run, and was engaged in farming until the fall of 1823, when he went to Ohio on business. On returning home by way of Zanesville, Ohio, he stopped at the home of Mr. McCluskey, (formerly of Allegheny City,) where he died of bilious fever Oct. —, 1823. He was buried in Ohio.

The following extracts were taken from a sketch of the life of Mr. Megibben, which was published in one of the papers subsequent to his death :

" Mr. Megibben was, undoubtedly, the most public spirited man that ever figured in the history of Harrison county. Kentucky does not present a more striking exemplification of the old maxim, ' Industry brings its own reward,' than in the life of this gentleman, who, by his own efforts, became the most prominent farmer, distiller, thorough-bred stock-raiser, etc., of Harrison county, and indeed, among the first of Central Kentucky.

" In the year 1859 he bought a farm at Lair station, (Harrison county,) containing about two hundred acres, upon which he resided until 1882. He added to it from year to year, until he owned, at the time of his death, 2800 acres, being the largest land owner in Harrison county.

“ His liberality was by no means an uncommon subject of discussion. Those interested in the cause of religion and education in Harrison county and vicinity are largely indebted to his generosity. The poor and needy found no cause for complaint when applying to him. He was always a man of fine personal and business habits, with a high sense of social and business integrity. His whole career presents one of the finest instances of a successful self-made man anywhere to be found in the state.”

The Frankfort Capital says : “ Hon. T. J. Megibben, of Harrison county, ex-Representative and ex-Senator, is dead, after a long illness, and the state has lost another of its good citizens. Nearly twenty years ago the editor of the Capital sat with him as a member of the House, where he was the personification of honesty and uprightness, as he was in his private affairs during his busy and successful life. Modest as a woman, gentle as a child, ‘Tom’ Megibben, as those who loved him loved best to call him, never betrayed a trust, faltered in his devotion to a friend or forgot to keep his plighted faith to any man. Eminently successful in life, amassing a vast estate, he died as he lived—a simple gentleman, a worthy example of struggling youth, and leaving behind him a wide circle of devoted friends. Lightly may the earth lie upon him, and may his soul rest with the peace of God which passeth all understanding.”

The following resolutions were passed in the Kentucky Legislature by the House and Senate : “ Whereas, information has just been received of the death of Hon. T. J. Megibben, of Harrison county, an ex-member of each House of the General Assembly of this state, therefore, be it

"Sec. 1. Resolved by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, that in his death the state has lost an eminent and useful citizen, whose services for his state had won for him in the hearts of his people a high and lasting appreciation, enjoyed by but few.

"Sec. 2. That we hereby extend to his widow and children our most profound sympathy in this, the hour of their deepest gloom.

"Sec. 3. That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to his widow by the Clerk of the Senate.

"Sec. 4. That in further token of appreciation of his memory, this body do now adjourn.

"Sec. 5. That this resolution take effect and be in force from its adoption."

JOSEPH M., JR., born Oct. 8, 1879.

JAMES W. MEGIBBEN was married Jan. 11, 1888, to Mary L. Wolford. They reside in Cynthiana, Ky. One son has blessed this union, viz.:

JAMES WOLFORD, born May 9, 1889.

NANNIE W. MEGIBBEN was married Dec. 18, 1884, to Felix Ashbrook, who is the present Mayor of Cynthi-

CONCLUSION.

“Live truly, and thy life shall be
A great and noble creed.”

The work is done. Across the years that have stretched between us and our forefathers herein considered—whom we have known only by tradition—we see many changes, many vacant places, vacant save in memory. “Life itself is not the boundary of a good man’s usefulness, for an influence never dies—once born it is immortal.” Peace to the memory of the fathers, who, long years ago, were called to their reward! Green be their graves, and calm their resting place!

Friends are passing away—many, undoubtedly, are now standing upon the margin of the unknown future. Another and younger generation is on the stage to take up the world’s work. “Sacred be the trusts committed to our care, and bright the visions of the coming ages!” Let those of us who are, as it were, but beginning our career and have yet our record to make, as we start out on the voyage of life, form the solemn purpose to make the most of the powers and talents that God has given us, and to do our best to ennoble our calling whatever it may be. There is no work so humble, but that it may be done to a great purpose and ennobled thereby. Let us not be indifferent to life’s purposes, but have ever before us the thought that “life is a fixed and stern reality, fuller of duties than the sky is of stars,” and that we each have a great work to do—“a deep and earnest life-work, solemn, real and useful.” We must meet the issues of life and press onward in the conflict.

If we would win in the battle of life and leave behind us a life-work worth preserving—one that will live after us—we must have a worthy object and a noble purpose in view, and concentrate all our powers and energies upon that object. Franklin says, “If you would not be forgotten as soon as you are dead, either write things worth reading or do things worth writing.” The immediate demands of the present are enough to inspire and impel us to the noblest thoughts and actions and to stimulate us to lay the foundation for a noble and useful manhood or womanhood.

Let us not stand idly dreaming, waiting until occasion tells us what to do, or to have our task marked out, else we shall die and leave our errand unfulfilled; but rather let us wisely avail ourselves of every opportunity and “gather roses while they bloom,” not waiting for the “golden chance.” In the words of the poet:

- “ He who is wise will not sit down
 With folded hands and say,
 ‘ Sometime, I trust, the Golden Chance
 Will come along this way.’
- “ To such, the opportunity
 They wait for never comes:
 It does not herald its approach
 With noisy beat of drums.
- “ It comes with quiet tread and mien;
 The dreamer does not see
 That which he’s waited for so long—
 His opportunity.
- “ And so the chance he seeks goes by
 To never come again,
 And all too late he learns the truth,
 When other watchful men
- “ Who do not fold their hands and wait
 For great things, win the prize;
 They sieze the chance of every day
 Before it hither flies.
- “ And thus they gain what dreamers lose;
 Each chance that comes may be
 The Golden Chance; so squander not
 One opportunity.”

Let us remember that we are responsible for time, for talents and for opportunities, therefore we should improve them, for of them we must give an account,—

“ The life above, when this is past,
Is the ripe fruit of life below.”

The past life, like neglected opportunities, comes not back except in retrospect, therefore we should so live that when we reach the evening of life—if such be our lot—and look back through the mist of years, it may not be with the sad consciousness that our life has been a failure, but rather may the years rise before us as a beautiful edifice, enduring forever to our praise.

“ Life is before you ! from the fated road
Ye cannot turn ; then take ye up the load ;
Not yours to tread or leave the unknown way,
Ye must go o'er it, meet ye what ye may.
Gird up your souls within you to the deed,
Angels and fellow-spirits bid you speed ! ”
